Chicago Rites

A delegation of Democratic county central committeemen, aldermen, and city department heads will meet the special train bearing Mayor Cermak's body when it arrives at the 12th street station of the Illinois Central at 10 o'clock this morning. Opening Chicago's three day rites for the slain mayor they will escort the body to the Cermak home. There the casket will remain until tomorrow morning, when it will be escorted to the city hall, where the body will lie in state until the civic rites at noon Friday in the Chicago Stadium. Aboard Mayor Cermak's funeral train, Birmingham, Ala., March 7.—[Special.]—Under leaden March skies, this caravan of sorrow rolled swiftly northward tonight bringing back to Chicago the body of its martyred mayor. It is due at the Illinois Central station in Chicago at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The sympathetic interest of the nation in this man who received in his body a fatal bullet aimed at the chief executive of the United States was evidenced by the crowds that collected at every town and village to stand with uncovered heads as the cortège rolled by.

Car Filled with Flowers.

Few stops were made, but whenever the train paused for a moment the doors of the car in which the bronze casket lies were rolled back and the crowds surged forward. They saw a great heap of flowers covering the casket. Pathetic little bunches of posies were in that pile and grandiloquent sprays donated by city officials along the route. The mass of flowers grew at each stop until they almost filled the car.

For an hour this afternoon the mayor's three daughters and his favorite granddaughter, Vivian Graham, sat about the casket, shivering in the chill air which swept the bare car. Some thirty hours before they had been similarly grouped about his deathbed, Vivian and Mrs. Helen Kenlay holding his hands as he breathed his last.

Today the daughters and Vivian sat holding each other's hands while they brooded over their loss.

Tell of Many Kindnesses.

"He was all that a father could be," said Mrs. Lillian Graham. "The world may talk about his greatness as a public official, but we know him as tender and loving and generous and kind."

"No girl ever had a grandfather like him," said the moist eyed Vivian. "He just had the biggest heart in the world."

Then the daughters retired to their staterooms and one by one every person on the train walked into the car just behind the locomotive and paid his or her respects to the memory of the dead man.

Among these friends were Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz, John P. Harding, Edward J. Kelly, Ald. and Mrs. James B Bowler, Joseph D. Breit, James Touhy, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, James Whalen, Martin A. Kennelly, Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba, William P. Haberkorn, and others.

Mrs. Clara Beesly stood for a long time staring at the flower banked casket. For many years she had been the mayor's personal secretary, sharing in all his confidential affairs, keeping many an important secret.

"I don't know what I shall do now," she said simply. "There won't be much to interest me now that he has gone."

Will to Be Probated Soon.

Senator Richey Graham, his son-in-law, said that the mayor had left a will which is in Chicago and which will be filed for probate soon after the funeral services. He said he did not know the contents of the will, but expressed a belief that the mayor's fortune, reputed to be a large one, will be distributed among members of his family.

He further declared that he believed the mayor's estate would not be as large as it was popularly supposed to be. The mayor lost heavily in the

QUITE A STRIKING RESEMBLANCE

101 TODAY, HE ISN'T WORRIED ABOUT THINGS

Kirby Jackson, who will be 101 years old today, said yesterday that he wasn't much worried over the present financial situation. He lives at 5344 Greenwood avenue with his daughter, Miss Grace E. Jackson, a teacher in the Hyde Park High school.

"I've seen money pretty scarce before," he said. "We just traded what we had for anything we needed. I never worried very much about anything. I suppose that's why I've lived this long."

Mr. Jackson is probably the oldest living railroad engineer, according to his daughter. He retired more than 20 years ago after 44 years with the Pennsylvania railroad. He began work firing a woodburner on the old Cincinnati and Peru railroad in 1858.

Today Mr. Jackson is to have his favorite dessert, strawberry shortcake, and a cake with candles. In addition to Chicago friends, old neighbors from his former home at Fort Wayne, Ind., will come to tea.

AUSTRIA PLACED UNDER DICTATOR TO CURB FASCISM

VIENNA, March 7.—(AP)—The government of Chancellor Dollfuss tonight shelved Austria's paralyzed parliamentary machine and began ruling by dictatorial powers.

Before muzzling the press and forbidding all indoor and outdoor political meetings and processions, the chancellor went to President Wilhelm Miklas, and offered the resignations of the entire cabinet. The president refused to accept them.

The dictatorship, which was one result of wholesale resignations last week-end of parliamentary officers because of a disagreement concerning treatment of striking railwaymen, was believed to be aimed at an increasingly strong wave of pro-Hitler sentiment which culminated last night in a wildly enthusiastic demonstration here against the chancellor and for "our chancellor, Adolf Hitler."

Berwyn Alderman Picked by the Flip of a Coin

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners, yesterday flipped a nickel in the air to decide the contest for alderman in the Fourth ward, Berwyn. Tails showed and Frank Konvalinka was declared the winner. Konvalinka and John J. Handtmann tied in the election a week ago with a vote each of 213. The election law provides that if two candidates receive an equal number of votes the successful one shall be chosen by lot.

Roosevelt Son Turns Down $40,000 Job

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Elliott Roosevelt leaves at dawn tomorrow morning from the White House for the wide open spaces of the west, and thereby hangs a tale of the difficulties of being the son of a President of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt, who is 22 years old, said today that he has found it impossible to continue in his advertising business because of the impossibility of soliciting business which did not have some connection with Washington.

Unwilling to subject himself to demands by prospective clients, or to be placed even involuntarily in such a position, Elliott Roosevelt has decided to strike out for the cow country, to establish himself on a ranch.

Clients Might Expect Favors.

Mr. Roosevelt has severed his connections with Paul Cornell & Co., New York City advertising firm, but he made it quite plain today that none of the officials of that concern had sought to have his influence applied for their clients.

But the fact that he was an employe of the firm made it a source of embarrassment to the company in its solicitations for new business in that a new client might wrongly assume that favors could be sought in Washington through his connection with the company.

However, a large advertising firm sought to enlist the young Roosevelt in their office, and the interview which ensued, as reported from one of Mr. Roosevelt's close friends, substantially was as follows:

"Why, yes," said Mr. Roosevelt, "I may be interested in such a connection. And what would my salary be?"

Names Salary as a Joke.

"What do you think?" inquired the advertising man.

"O," said Mr. Roosevelt, simply as a joke, "about $40,000 a year."

"All right," came the reply, which astounded Roosevelt, "we'll pay you $40,000 a year."

"And what will my duties be to earn that sum?" pursued the young man, now suspecting the inevitable catch.

"Why, you'll have a desk in the office and handle the needs of our clients."

"Well, just what needs might they have that I should handle?"

"O, if the client is in the drug business and legislation is brought up in Washington affecting his business you will go to the capital and take care of their interests. If the client is interested in the tariff changes on the product he manufactures you'll represent him in Washington."

Mr. Roosevelt had listened to hear it through, and then with a sarcastic "Thank you very much," he strode out of the interview.

Another firm wanted him to accept a connection on the ground that some of their clients, interested in the beer business, could use his influence to protect their interests and get them special privileges when the beer bills get to congress.

Suggest He See President.

Other offers he has had carried proposals that he seek his father's ear privately in behalf of clients without appearing on the capitol scene at all.

Soon he became convinced that any business connection he would make would be misconstrued in many quarters. So at last he decided to follow an old bent, and he determined to go west. He has consulted at length on his plans with Mrs. John C. Greenway, one of the most successful ranchers in Arizona, a life long friend of the Roosevelt family.

Mr. Roosevelt has not decided where he will locate in the west, but it will be either in Arizona or New Mexico.

At 6 o'clock tomorrow morning he will leave, driving in a small coupe he has purchased, and accompanying him on the trip westward will be one of his close New York friends, Ralph Hitchcock.

EDICTS OF U. S. AND GOVERNOR CAUSE TANGLE

Illinois Holiday Is Extended.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Out of the confusion of conferences, proclamations, and exceptions to proclamations one thing late last night became clear: Chicago will not have clearing house scrip before Friday at the earliest and Chicago banks will not be open—even part way—before Friday.

Tomorrow congress convenes and tomorrow night the four day holiday proclaimed by President Roosevelt expires, unless extended.

Last night at 10 o'clock Gov. Horner issued a second proclamation extending the Illinois holiday—originally scheduled to end last night—to tomorrow night. This was done, he explained, so that the state holiday might coincide with the national holiday.

Print Clearing House Scrip.

Meanwhile the presses of the American Bank Note company yesterday were grinding out stacks of clearing house certificates which member banks may offer the public as a substitute for money some time after tomorrow.

Although Chicago bankers attending the gathering of financial bigwigs in Washington were reported to be cool toward the idea of scrip as a solution of bank troubles, the clearing house banks here have considered the probability of the issuance of scrip strong enough to warrant the spending of $100,000 to have a lot of it printed.

An hour after Gov. Horner's second proclamation last night the meeting of bankers at the clearing house broke up and the conferees announced briefly that there would be no scrip before Friday, at the earliest.

"The governor's pronouncement precludes any action on scrip before Friday," said Howard Sims, manager of the clearing house.

Attend Bankers' Meeting.

Among those present at the clearing house session were Philip R. Clarke, president of the City National Bank and Trust company; Edward Eagle Brown, executive vice president, First National bank of Chicago; Stanley Field, chairman, and Abner J. Stilwell, vice president, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Solomon Smith, president, Northern Trust company; Howard W. Fenton, president, and A. W. Harris, chairman, Harris Trust and Savings bank; Eugene M. Stevens, chairman of the board, and James B. McDougall, governor, Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

Brown, Stevens, Clarke and Stilwell had been closeted with Gov. Horner until 10 p. m. at his apartment in the Congress hotel.

After issuing a formal statement that the governor's proclamation prevented the issuance of scrip before Friday, several officials stated that the order also meant that all banks, national as well as state would remain closed through Thursday.

U. S. and State Orders Conflict.

Despite the governor's order that "no bank or trust company shall be open for the transaction of banking or trust business prior to March 10," however, the clearing house members indicated in their statement that they would continue to supply credit for shipments of perishable food, hospital supplies, and public relief, as permitted by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

This apparent confusion of the two sets of instructions, one state and the other national, was one of a series of apparently false starts and indecisive actions yesterday.

With the secretary of the treasury assuming dictatorial powers over all banks, state as well as national, on the one hand, and with the governor issuing blanket orders seemingly covering national as well as state banks, on the other, nobody seemed quite certain what to do, especially where the orders seemed to conflict.

Stop Taking Deposits.

Yesterday morning, acting under Secretary Woodin's permissive amendment to the original presidential proclamation, a few banks opened to accept new deposits. Shortly thereafter, however, they stopped, clearing house officials having pointed out that they were violating the governor's order

Hitler's Nazis Beat Yankees; U. S. Protests

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—Alfred W. Kliefoth, first secretary of the American embassy, protested to the German foreign office today over attacks on three American citizens by men wearing Nazi storm troop uniforms. Two of the victims are Jews. Kliefoth acted for Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, who is recovering from an attack of influenza.

Nathaniel Wolff of Rochester, N. Y., who came here three weeks ago, complained to the embassy that a band of Chancellor Hitler's storm troopers broke into his room at 5 a. m., beat him, and held him prisoner in a dark room for two hours. Then they took him to a forest near Gruenewald where they threatened to torture him and released him after he signed a promise to leave Germany and never return. He has left for Paris.

Wolff, who is a painter, told embassy officials that the Hitlerites overheard a conversation in which he and some Germans spoke unfavorably of Hitler.

Point Revolvers at Writer.

Edwin Dakin, 34 year old writer from Hannibal, Mo., was visited at dawn by five storm troopers who pointed revolvers at him. They accused him of hanging a communist flag in his window. Dakin explained that he had just moved into the room and that his predecessor might have been a Red. His visitors then left.

Henry H. Sattler of New York City, a German born Jew, complained that he was beaten by Nazi storm troops while standing on a street corner talking with two Germans.

The embassy has asked police to protect American citizens from a repetition of similar attacks.

President Paul von Hindenburg presided at a joint meeting of the national and Prussian cabinets today in which the government discussed an empowerment bill which it intends to submit to the newly elected reichstag. The powers, which the government plans to demand, are so great that it will be necessary to change the constitution. This requires the approval of two-thirds of the reichstag and Hitler's cabinet is negotiating with political leaders to assure safe passage of the bill.

Republican Officials Replaced.

The government has decided to permit the German states to reorganize their governments and replace republican officials with members of the victorious National Socialist and Nationalist parties before taking more drastic action.

The post-war republican colors ceased to exist in Germany today and the constitutional provision concerning them became a dead letter. The hoisting of the former imperial flag over the Berlin city hall for the first time since 1918 symbolized what was happening throughout the reich. In many localities, both the imperial and Nazi flags were flown.

NEW LAWS ON BANK CONTROL ROOSEVELT AIM

Congress Program Ready Thursday.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Pictures on Back Page)

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—While the treasury continued to issue regulations permitting additional banking transactions to provide necessities of life, President Roosevelt today shaped the program for ending the banking tieup which he will submit to congress on Thursday.

At a two hour session of the President and his cabinet it was determined that the program should provide for a reopening of the banks under conditions that would restore the confidence of depositors and effect a speedy return of currency from hoarding.

Both at this session and during the conferences between treasury officials and bankers at the treasury there were increasing indications of a reluctance to authorize the issuance of scrip as a substitute for currency. Some important bankers said tonight there would be no scrip authorized by Friday, as had been anticipated earlier in the week. In some quarters it was said the idea of authorizing the issuance of a new type of currency backed by other assets than gold was gaining favor.

Prepares New Bank Bills.

Various plans were discussed which the President took under advisement for further consideration with Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin and Attorney General Homer Cummings, who is drafting the legislation to be proposed.

In addition to giving complete sanction to the proclamation of a national banking holiday and the measures adopted for partial reopening of the banks the legislation to be passed immediately is designed to provide a sound basis for the resumption of banking operations. The object is to cut the dead wood of worthless and frozen assets from the banking structure and provide a new foundation of liquid assets in the banks that will continue in operation after the moratorium.

With the emergency met in this way, congress will then proceed to consider with more deliberation legislation of a permanent character for reform of banking practices and the creation of a unified system of banking.

Would Reclassify Banks.

The cabinet discussion of the emergency program revolved around plans for the writing down of deposits in all banks to the level justified by the liquid assets in each bank and schemes for eliminating unsound banks altogether. In the latter category is a proposal advocated by many of the President's advisers to classify banks according to liquidity.

For example, banks unable to show more than 50 per cent of liquid assets would not be allowed to reopen. Banks possessing from 50 to 75 per cent liquid assets would be allowed to reopen under restrictions as to deposit withdrawals, possibly a five per cent limit. Banks more than 75 per cent liquid would be allowed to reopen without any restrictions.

To Eliminate Weak Banks.

The eventual result of the operation of this plan would be to squeeze out the insolvent banks that have been kept alive by the R. F. C. pulmotor and other palliatives. The trend of thought on the subject is clearly toward a system of fewer but stronger banks. It is expected that state bank authorities would arrange for state bank reorganizations along the national lines.

It is because of the growing conviction that the time for palliatives is past that the scheme for issuing clearing house certificates or other form of scrip to take the place of money during the emergency is hanging fire.

Leavell on Way Home.

Secretary Woodin issued a regulation authorizing scrip, but neither the Chicago bankers, headed by Melvin A. Traylor and James Leavell, nor the New York bankers displayed any interest in it. Considerable friction over the matter developed at the conference board in the treasury, the Chicagoans taking the position that what the situation calls for is not scrip to gloss over a want of confidence in the banks, but a restoration of confidence which will bring currency out of hoarding.

Mr. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company left Washington this afternoon for Chicago to look after the affairs of his institution and to talk matters over with other bankers. Mr. Traylor, head of the First National bank, probably will return to Chicago for the funeral of Mayor Cermak, although there is a possibility he will not be able to get away. He has been in almost constant conference with treasury and reserve officials for the last week.

For Reinvigorated Banking.

Today's rift had roots running back into the fight which the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has waged for several years against the federal reserve system's policies. The basic question is whether stimulants shall be pumped into the existing banking system or whether soft spots shall be wiped out first.

Advocates of drastic writing down of deposits declare that people now would rather know that they had 50 cents in a bank which is sound than have a dollar in a bank loaded down with worthless assets. If the frozen assets are not cleared away now and bank liabilities, including deposits, written down accordingly, a golden opportunity to lay a sound foundation for recovery will be lost, it is argued.

Issuance of scrip against the best assets of a bank makes the holders of scrip the preferred creditors of a bank, opponents of the scrip plan hold. In the long run this move will weaken the banks, they say.

Another injection of emergency stimulants into the present wabbly bank system will be as temporary and useless as the open market operations which the federal reserve system conducted last year over the protests of the Chicago reserve bank, it is maintained.

Much of the weakness of the present situation is attributable to the reserve system's operations of last year, bankers, who now agree with the Chicago position, admit.

Emergency Strength Exhausted.

By exhausting all of their emergency strength last year the reserve banks have left themselves virtually unable to come to the aid of the banks in the present crisis.

Now, when the most serious trouble is the depletion of the reserves of the member banks, the reserve banks should be buying government and other securities from the member banks so that those institutions would have more cash and credit with which to replenish their reserves.

Federal reserve banks are now unable to follow this normal procedure because last year, in an effort to start a business revival, they bought a billion dollars' worth of securities from the member banks, tying up a third of all their assets in securities. This great power, which was exhausted last year, cannot be invoked now when it is sorely needed.

Unable to Support Reserves.

If the reserve banks had been in a position to support the reserves of the member banks during the last month, both of the two drains which have caused the present crisis might have been fought off. The two drains were a billion dollar domestic demand for money and a 200 million dollar withdrawal of gold to foreign countries. Both of these demands had to be met from the reserves of the banks until the reserves, which govern the staying power of the banks, have become emaciated.

The billion dollar demand for more money came from persons in this country who wished to hoard funds or who were forced to resort to cash when banking holidays in their sections deprived them of credit machinery. Total currency outstanding jumped from $5,652,000,000 on Feb. 1 to $6,720,000,000 on March 1.

Gold withdrawals during this same period amounted to 200 million dollars. American gold stock shrunk to $4,244,000,000 on March 1, and it is estimated that the subsequent two days saw a further shrinkage of 100 millions. The reserve banks, which had been called on for about 116 million dollars in gold in a single week, were left with only 800 million dollars of free gold.

Excess Reserves Raided.

Because of the dual demands for gold and currency the excess reserves of the banks in New York City, the major reservoir of credit and money, fell from 400 millions to 12 millions in about a month. Reserves of banks in other cities also declined, but less rapidly.

One of the orders issued by Mr. Woodin provides for the reopening of the federal reserve banks as fiscal agents of the government. This step reopens the channels for treasury financing. On March 15 the government must borrow 600 million dollars. The way has been cleared for the reserve banks to take the entire issue of government obligations, if necessary.

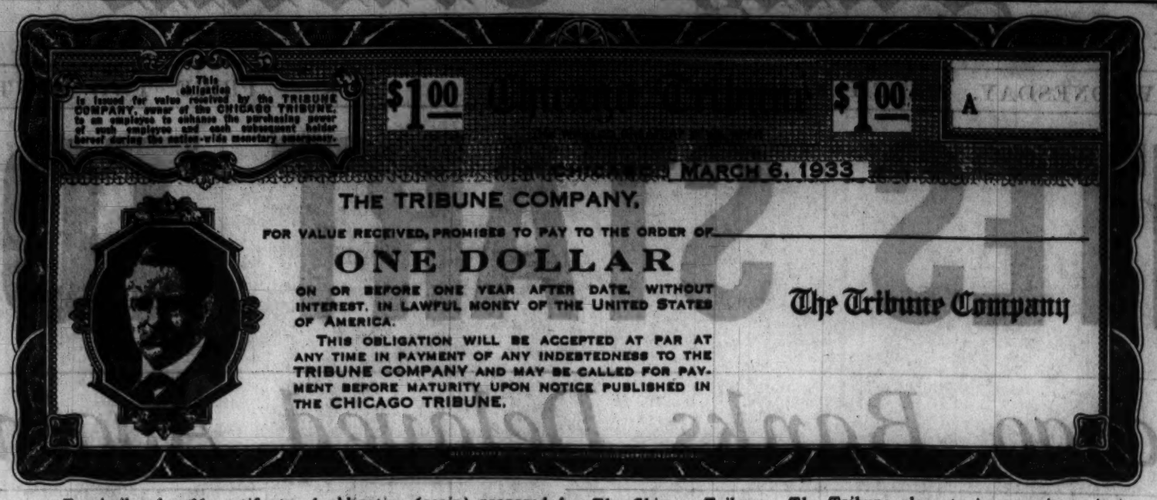

Whether the President will include some form of bank deposit guarantees in his emergency program was uncertain tonight. Government guaranty of at least a percentage of new deposits is being strongly urged upon the executive. In some quarters it is considered significant that Mr. Roosevelt has not sought the advice of Senator Carter Glass, vigorous opponent of government guaranty.

Lewis Has Insurance Plan.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, newly chosen Democratic whip of the senate, returned from a White House conference to explain that he is urging a form of deposit guarantee which would place the fundamental responsibility on both depositors and banks, but with the credit of the government as a bulwark in time of emergency.

Under the plan, Senator Lewis said, depositors and the banks would both be required to contribute a small percentage assessment to a guarantee fund, to be drawn on to cover losses through bank failures.

NEW YORK'S BANKS WILL REOPEN UNDER WOODIN'S RULES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—Confusion which existed in local banking circles today was ended tonight.

The leading New York banks and Trust companies then decided to reopen tomorrow for the limited banking functions permitted by the regulations issued by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. New deposits will be handled freely. Old deposits will be held for the present.

The banks will be united in furnishing accommodations to finance the movement of foodstuffs into the city and in supplying funds for meeting pay rolls, cashing pay checks, and cashing checks for absolutely necessary purchases of such things as food and medical supplies.

It was understood that Gov. Herbert Lehman had made it plain to the bankers that any orders issued by Secretary Woodin superseded his own proclamation of a state banking holiday in New York, and that they could take advantage of the treasury department's ruling without fear of legal difficulties in New York state.

Gov. Lehman announced tonight that Alfred E. Smith would be chairman of the Emergency Certificate corporation, which was approved by the legislature shortly before. It was created for a statewide scrip issue, and the other directors will be Nathan L. Miller, a former Republican governor of New York; Lincoln Cromwell, acting head of the Merchants' Association of New York City; Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post Standard; Robert Jackson, an attorney of Jamestown.

After some of the banks reopened this morning in accordance with Secretary Woodin's decree making certain exceptions to the national banking holiday, they closed down again because of fear that the mandatory nature of the state banking holiday made their reopening illegal. Confusion reigned all day and one bank with many branches opened and shut them all four times throughout the day.

Despite this confusion and uncertainty, the partial restoration of New York's banking facilities was a great help to the city, and further improvement in the situation is expected tomorrow as a result of the united decision to reopen.

Savings banks did not reopen except for permitting access to safe deposit boxes, and will not be open tomorrow.

TRIAL OF $100,000 ALIENATION SUIT OPENS IN COURT

Hearing of a $100,000 alienation of affection suit against Mrs. Ephemia Miner, wife of Edward Miner, an insurance adjuster, was begun yesterday before Circuit Judge George Fred Rush. The plaintiff is Miner's first wife, Mrs. Caroline Miner, 596 Hawthorne place. She charges that the romance between her former husband and the defendant began when Miner was adjusting insurance in connection with the death of the present Mrs. Miner's first husband, Robert T. Hansen, who was found drowned in the drainage canal in July, 1929. Hansen carried a $62,500 life insurance policy.

TRIBUNE PLANS TO ISSUE SCRIP TO ITS EMPLOYES

Starts Friday Unless Clearing House Acts.

A tentative plan for issuing certificates of obligation was announced yesterday by officials of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to enhance the purchasing power of its employés and thus stimulate trade in the present crisis. It was announced that THE TRIBUNE pay roll this week-end would be met in part by these certificates unless clearing house certificates are in circulation by Friday.

Announcement of THE TRIBUNE'S plan of paying employés in such certificates met with a general approval on the part of Chicago business houses, which announced that any obligations issued by this newspaper would be acceptable as currency.

On Special Paper.

THE TRIBUNE scrip is being prepared in denominations of $1, $5, $10, and $20, which will be printed on paper exclusively made and watermarked for the Western Bank Note and Engraving company. This paper will be exceedingly difficult to counterfeit, it was pointed out. Each certificate bears the photograph of Theodore Roosevelt, because he was President during the panic of 1907, when clearing house certificates were issued, and the plates were already made.

The Tribune certificates will have borders of different colors, green for the $1 notes, blue for the $5's, brown for $10's, and red for the $20's.

W. E. MacFarlane, business manager of THE TRIBUNE, announced that the purpose of issuing the certificates is to provide a convenient medium of exchange and to stimulate trade. The purpose is also explained on the notes as follows:

"This obligation is issued for value received by the Tribune Company, owner of the THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, to an employé to enhance the purchasing power of such employé and each subsequent holder thereof during the nation wide monetary emergency."

Gives Tribune's Guarantee.

THE TRIBUNE'S guarantee is stated as follows:

"On or before one year after date, without interest, in lawful money of the United States of America, this obligation will be accepted at par at any time in payment of any indebtedness to the Tribune company and may be called for payment before maturity upon notice published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

Each certificate will be signed by the paymaster and the cashier of THE TRIBUNE and made payable to the order of an employé of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. MacFarlane said that in the event clearing house certificates are not in circulation by Friday, THE TRIBUNE'S pay roll this week end would be met with cash and Tribune certificates, probably fifty per cent of each.

Identify Robber Suspect in Gold Coast Slaying

Thomas Hirschman, 19 years old, 3601 Thomas street, who is accused of six robberies and has been free on a $60,000 bond, was yesterday partially identified in the courtroom of Judge Philip Sullivan as one of three bandits who on Feb. 19 shot and killed Leroy Selby, Negro doorman of the Whitehall Apartment hotel, 105 East Delaware place. Hirschman was in court on the robbery charges and obtained a continuance until April 6. He was locked up until other witnesses of the murder can view him.

U. S. OFFICIALS DISCUSS PLANS TO SAFEGUARD DOLLAR VALUE ABROAD

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Plans for pegging the dollar, if the United States does not immediately resume international gold payments, were receiving increased attention by officials engaged in the treasury conferences today.

With huge drains of currency and gold already having sapped the gold reserves of this country, immediate resumption of international gold payments was considered one of the largest obstacles confronting treasury officials.

If the dollar is no longer redeemable in a certain amount of gold, due to a gold embargo, its value would be set by supply and demand of dollar exchange. It then could be manipulated on the world market by speculators, unless some safeguard is set up.

Plans for the pegging of the dollar varied from the establishment of a stabilization fund such as that used in England to the placing of foreign exchange dealing under the supervision of the federal reserve banks.

WOMAN KILLED, 3 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Marie Weir, 85 years old, 9647 Winston avenue, was killed and three other women were injured last night in a collision between two automobiles at 64th and Loomis streets. The others hurt were Mrs. Esther Hennessey, daughter of Mrs. Weir; Mrs. Anna Ossentjuk, 2025 North Avers avenue, and Mrs. Richard Stager, 1411 69th avenue, Cicero.

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, was fatally injured last night when a truck owned by the Jackson Barber Supply company collided with a Chicago and West Towns railway bus at Wolf road and Lake street, Melrose Park. Ray Johnson, 7530 Aberdeen street, driver of the truck, and Henry Kruger, 111 South 20th avenue, Maywood, driver of the bus, were injured. The man killed was a bus passenger.

These deaths and one other increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 146. The other victim:

Bernard McGuire, 49 years old, 7642 South Wabash avenue. Killed last night at 72d and State streets by a car driven by Mario Chincherna, 33 West 70th street, a contractor. Chincherna was not held.

BANK CRISIS MAY FORCE EX-KAISER TO CUT EXPENSES

LONDON, March 7.—(AP)—The former German kaiser will probably be obliged to cut his household expenses as a result of the financial situation in the United States, the London Daily Mail's Doorn correspondent reported tonight.

Wilhelm also was said to be anxiously watching fluctuations of the Dutch florin, a fall in which would make him comparatively poor.

The correspondent cited a "very high authority" as saying that Wilhelm has abandoned a wish to return to the throne in Germany, but is extremely anxious to end his days in Germany as a private citizen.

NATIONAL CITY BANK TO DIVORCE ITS AFFILIATE

Mitchell's Successor Issues Order.

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—James H. Perkins, chairman of the board of directors of the National City Bank of New York, announced tonight a plan to separate completely the National City bank and the National City company.

The board of directors of both institutions had met in the afternoon and discussed the situation brought about by criticisms before the Norbeck committee in Washington.

Here's Perkins' Statement.

Mr. Perkins' statement follows:

"The boards of directors of the National City Bank of New York and of the National City company have today determined on the policy of working toward the divorcement of the bank and its security affiliate. It will be sought to accomplish this as soon as it can be done in an orderly manner without sacrifice of the assets of the company and of the value which exists in its facilities for the purchase and distribution of investment securities of the highest grade.

"In pursuance of this policy, from this time on, no executive officer of the bank will sit upon the board of the company and no executive officer of the company will sit upon the board of the bank."

Perkins Succeeds Mitchell.

Mr. Perkins was elected chairman of the board of directors of the National City bank nine days ago, following the resignation of Charles E. Mitchell, chairman, and of Hugh B. Baker, president of the National City company. They had been widely criticized following revelations of practices made before the senate committee.

The National City bank is the second largest bank in the world and had total assets of $1,615,260,569 at the close of 1932. Its assets included cash of $300,619,219; loans, discounts, and bankers' acceptances of $619,791,302; investments of $544,316,655, and other assets.

ISSUE OF SCRIP FOR CHICAGO'S BANKS TIED UP

All day long the presses continued to turn out clearing house certificates which the clearing house officials declared they had no idea that they would be able to use.

Secretary Woodin in Washington issued a statement authorizing clearing houses to issue certificates, but not before Friday unless he should give special permission. Press dispatches from Washington reported that Secretary Woodin had gone to bed at 11 o'clock.

Inasmuch as authorization from Mr. Woodin would come through the federal reserve system, however, it was not until an hour or so later that it was concluded that Mr. Woodin had issued no authorization before he retired.

Three Bankers' Conferences.

All day yesterday and far into the night three separate conferences of bank officers were going on at the clearing house headquarters on the sixth floor of the Federal Reserve bank at La Salle and Jackson.

At one session a group was classifying the bank assets which would secure the certificates, when and if issued. Inasmuch as each bank will be jointly and severally liable for all certificates, great care must be taken in the selection of paper securing them. The assets offered by each bank were being investigated by the officers of other banks.

At a special session bank lawyers were finding their way through a tangle of legal questions airising out of the superimposing of a governor's proclamation and a President's proclamation, both with amendments, upon existing statutes.

A third group was conferring on operating problems that must be settled before the issuance of certificates.

Plan Legislative Action.

And while congressional leaders in Washington were busily preparing bills to back with specific laws the President's bank closing order the legislature at Springfield yesterday was taking steps to strengthen the position of Gov. Horner with reference to the banking siutation in the state.

There were some lawyers who questioned his power to act as peremptorily as he did, and as a matter of future safeguard a bill was introduced by Majority Leader Thomas P. Sinnett in the house giving the governor almost dictatorial powers in the event that the present crisis is extended or recurs. It was sent to second reading without reference to a committee.

GOVERNOR'S EDICT

Gov. Horner's proclamation, issued last night, follows:

"I, Henry Horner, governor of the state of Illinois, do hereby proclaim and direct that my proclamation of March 3 be modified and amended so that it shall provide that no bank or trust company shall be open for the transaction of banking or trust company business prior to March 10, 1933; that is to say, that the provision for banking holidays in my proclamation of March 3, 1933, as to the closing of all banks and trust companies in this state be extended from March 7, 1933, to and including March 9, 1933.

"Until I am authoritatively advised of further action by the federal government, all other provisions of the proclamation issued by me on March 3, 1933, shall remain in force.

"It should be clearly understood at this time that no proclamation now or heretofore made by me shall be construed to permit any Illinois bank or trust company to transact any business, or do any act which is in violation of the laws of this state.

"Dated at Springfield, Ill., this seventh day of March, 1933, at 9:30 p. m. [Signed] HENRY HORNER."

Clearing House Statement.

The clearing house statement last night reads as follows:

"At a meeting of the Chicago Clearing House association today all details were perfected for the issuance of clearing house certificates, which it is proposed will be used as a currency medium in the Chicago area, as soon as authority is received.

"These certificates are being prepared in denominations of one, five, ten and fifty dollars, and will be in convenient form so that they can be used the same as cash.

"They will be accepted by the banks from their depositors as the equivalent of currency.

"By proclamation of the President of the United States the banks are subject to direction at this time by the secretary of the treasury, and it is through him that authority for such certificates or other methods for furnishing banking facilities to this community must first be obtained.

"In the meantime we are permitted by him to make payments of currency in cases of emergency, such as payments for perishable food, hospital supplies, and public relief.

"For the ordinary needs of the public at this time there is, in our opinion, ample currency in circulation in Chicago. As a convenience to the public a currency exchange has been established at 136 South La Salle street where gold, silver, and currency are changed for smaller denominations."

U. S. RESERVE BANKS AID MEMBERS THAT TURN OVER GOLD

New York, March 7.—(AP)—The resources of the federal reserve system were thrown behind its member banks tonight to facilitate the limited banking operations, such as providing funds for pay rolls and the movement of food, which started today.

But the reserve system, according to the authorization of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, made public by the New York Federal Reserve bank tonight, may aid only those banks which give up the gold and gold certificates which they hold in their own right, in exchange for other forms of currency.

But in keeping with President Roosevelt's campaign to end hoarding, the reserve banks first must require that each member inform its reserve institution of the amount of currency on hand, the reasons why additional currency is needed, and must "deliver to the Federal Reserve bank in exchange for other forms of coin and currency for credit on its books, all gold and gold certificates held by such member bank in its own right."

MEAT PRICES SKYROCKET AS BUYING GROWS

Other Food Costs Remain Unchanged.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The wholesale and retail prices of meats, particularly pork, went skyrocketing yesterday as food stores reported continued brisk buying of foodstuffs in Chicago and suburbs. In spite of reduced shipments of perishable foods, retail prices of nearly all groceries remained unchanged.

Officials of Chicago food markets, which serve as the barometer of national trends, pointed to two constructive steps taken yesterday to insure plenty of low priced edibles. Acting upon orders from Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Chicago banks began to honor checks in payment of perishable foods. At the same time, with the exception of the meat industry, those in control of the food markets were able to secure coöperation of wholesalers and retailers in keeping prices from rising sharply.

Sharp Rise in Pork.

Wholesale pork prices yesterday were from 50 to 250 per cent over those of last week. Pork loins, which were 8½ to 10 cents a pound last Saturday, were 16 to 20 cents yesterday. Spare ribs advanced to 8 cents a pound wholesale. Even neck bones, the "poor man's dinner," jumped from 1½ cents last Saturday to 5 cents yesterday. The top prices paid farmers for hogs yesterday in Chicago were under 4½ cents a pound.

John A. Kotal, secretary of the National Retail Meat Dealers' association, in protesting against this rise, declared there was no cause for "excitement" such as these increases caused yesterday. He said meat retailers know there are plenty of meat animals on farms, that they are being shipped to market. He asserted that the retailers do not believe the monetary situation justifies such a boost.

The Chicago Live Stock exchange, which had voted Monday to close, rescinded this order last night, and the stockyards will be open as usual this morning. No other markets closed and packers have had access to direct country shipments daily, but in somewhat curtailed supply.

Blames Reduced Supply.

W. Whitfield Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, issued a statement, attributing the increased pork prices to reduced marketings of live stock. Receipts at twenty markets yesterday were about half as large as those a week ago, he said.

"While receipts of live stock may continue scanty for several days," declared Woods, "there is no cause for alarm."

Wholesale prices of fruits and vegetables, butter, eggs and poultry increased fractionally yesterday. Committees formed in the various wholesale markets were operating to see that no one took advantage of the situation. The retail merchants in Evanston and other communities announced they would continue to abide by the President's proclamation, and would endeavor to prevent food prices going up.

ROOSEVELT QUITS AS GOVERNOR OF PHILIPPINES

President Accepts His Resignation.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of his Republican cousin, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, as governor general of the Philippines, effective March 24.

The President graciously expressed "cordial appreciation" for the work done in the Philippines by Gov. Roosevelt and because the colonel had agreed in view of the present economic situation to defer his desire to leave his post immediately.

So far as has been made known, however, there has been no patching up of the feud which has existed between these two Roosevelts, although the colonel's brother, Kermit, and his sister, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, have both effected reconciliations with the new President.

Vice Governor Reappointed.

The White House announced the reappointment of John H. Holliday of Missouri as vice governor of the Philippines, and after Col. Roosevelt's departure on March 24 Mr. Holliday, who has served in the capacity of vice governor for some time, will become acting governor general.

It was stated at the White House that Gov. Roosevelt had desired to be in the United States on March 24, but had agreed to postpone his sailing date until that time so there may be a continuous administration during the present economic crisis.

The President put in a full day at his desk in the executive office building, the first work he has performed there. He did not even return to the White House for luncheon, which brought more raisings of eyebrows from the regular retainers hereabouts, for President Hoover never failed to go to his regular luncheon, even if he rushed through it.

Works on Economy Plans.

President Roosevelt's luncheon was spread out on his desk, and while he ate he went over plans for a drastic economy program with his young director of the budget, Lewis Douglas of Arizona. Mr. Douglas, who was officially appointed today, has been at work on the budget for weeks, and has confided to some of his associates the hope of cutting a billion dollars from the four billion dollar annual federal tax bill.

After lunch the President presided at a cabinet meeting, called for 2 o'clock instead of the previously orthodox hour of 11 in the morning. The cabinet discussion centered chiefly about the banking situation.

WIRE TAPPING BAN IS PUT INTO EFFECT BY U. S. DRY CHIEF

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, ordered into effect today the ban on wire tapping and on the purchase of liquor as enforcement methods, voted by congress when it appropriated $8,440,000 for the bureau's annual expenses.

The regulations, he pointed out, do not formally go into effect until July 1, but he ordered immediate observance from his agents "because cases made contrary to them now probably will be tried after these provisions become law."

The result of the order, Mr. Woodcock said, will mean a complete change in enforcement methods and "will cause this bureau to operate almost exclusively against the manufacturers and transporters" of liquor.

In New York, apparently, the new system will put an end to the spectacular night club raids by dress suited prohibition agents, with lavish expense accounts, and will to some extent exempt the speakeasy from a considerable part of the federal supervision.

It will also, from figures furnished by Prohibition Administrator Andrew McCampbell, cut about $17,500 off the expenditure of the local bureau.

Last year, he told reporters, prohibition agents spent $17,000 in 20,000 cases. About $500 was spent for informers. Since 1931, he said, there has been no wire tapping here.

Mr. Woodcock in his order stressed the importance for agents under the new régime of working against the wholesaler rather than the retailer of liquor.

TWO ARE HELD FOR KIDNAPING OF RICH BROKER

Gunman, Note Writer and Women Questioned.

Denver, Colo., March 7.—[Special.]—Chief of Police Albert T. Clark announced today he had arrested two men who took part in the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II., wealthy Denver broker. Three women believed to be implicated are being held for questioning. Two more men are being sought. The ranch house in which the young millionaire was held captive has been located in South Dakota, the chief announced.

Boettcher was kidnaped on the night of Feb. 12 as he drove up to the garage behind his home. He was released on March 1 after his relatives had paid a ransom of $60,000.

Says Youngberg Confessed.

The two men arrested are Arthur Youngberg, 37, and Carl W. Pearce, 36. Youngberg is accused of being one of the two armed men who did the actual kidnaping. The police say Pearce typed the ransom notes which were sent to the Boettcher family.

Chief Clark said that Youngberg confessed. Federal warrants have been obtained for those seized by the Denver authorities. This would be the first case to be prosecuted under the federal Lindbergh anti-kidnaping law whereby taking a victim from one state to another carries a penalty of one day to life in prison.

Verne Sankey, 41, is being sought as the man who was with Youngberg at the time of the kidnaping.

Sankey is supposed to be the owner of the ranch at which the victim was held. Police also are seeking Gordon Elkhorn, 33, in the belief that he and Youngberg were the ones who guarded Boettcher during his captivity.

The three women held for questioning are: Mrs. Verne Sankey, mother of two children and wife of one of the men sought; Mrs. Ruth Kohler, 39, and Miss Merelyn Kohler, 16 years old, her daughter.

Identification of the ranch house as the building in which Boettcher was held prisoner was positive, Chief Clark said. During his imprisonment the young millionaire had burned a cigaret hole in a rug and had smeared his fingerprints over the walls with the intention of making it possible for police to identify it in the course of future investigation. The building tallied with his description in each detail, Chief Clark said.

Caught With Ransom Cash.

Police investigation, after Pearce had been heard talking of the case, led to the arrest of Mrs. Sankey on Saturday and Pearce and Mrs. Kohler early Sunday. When Mrs. Sankey was apprehended the police said they found $1,400 of the marked ransom money in her possession.

NEW YORK TO CHICAGO RAIL FARES TO BE CUT DURING WORLD'S FAIR

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—Passenger traffic officials of the eastern railroads decided today to make drastic reductions in rates between New York and Chicago for the Century of Progress Exposition. In the last few weeks the roads have been offering week-end excursions to Chicago at $12.50.

From June 1 to Oct. 31 the railroads connecting New York and Chicago will offer a 5 day return coach rate at one and one-tenth the regular rates, a 16 day ticket good in coaches and Pullmans at one and one-third the usual rate and a 30 day coach and Pullman ticket at one and one-half the usual rate. Commensurate reductions will be made for intermediate points.

BUSINESS MOVES EVENLY, AWAITING WORD ON MONEY

Currency Exchange Aids Traders.

Chicago business moved along at an even, if greatly slowed, pace yesterday while merchants, manufacturers, employers, and employés waited hopefully for definite announcement that some medium of exchange would soon be in use.

Some of the difficulties that were encountered on Saturday and in lesser degree on Monday appeared to be solved. One of these was the making of change. The currency exchange established in the old quarters of the National Bank of the Republic functioned through the day and served several thousand persons. Virtually all tradesmen were able to make change for large bills.

Loop Business Slack.

A tour of the loop stores disclosed that several had fairly large crowds of buyers, but that business with nearly all was subnormal. All continued to serve their charge customers as usual.

At the postal savings bank in the federal building it was reported there was no undue crush and that the bank's business was near normal. Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder said that the fifty substations of the postal banks on Saturday had received deposits twice as large as withdrawals. The heavy removals of money from the downtown office on Monday, he added, were mostly for the purpose of paying taxes.

Await Issue of Scrip.

Confidence was generally expressed that the issuance of clearing house certificates or other acceptable scrip would immediately cause an upturn in buying. Employés of many large concerns, still holding last week's pay checks, were awaiting some further announcement to follow the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin to the effect that provision would be made for pay.

MYSTERIES OF LAW INSOLUBLE PUZZLE TO NEGRO BALL PLAYER

Memphis, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—The mysteries of the law are an insoluble puzzle to Jim Moore, Negro baseball player.

Last September Moore resorted to violence in settling an argument with another Negro player. He was indicted for assault to murder with a pistol, and pistol carrying.

Both cases came up today, that for assault first. The jury heard the evidence and retired. To try the pistol carrying charge a second jury was brought into the same courtroom and heard the same witness testify to the same facts. It retired.

Then the first jury came back—with a conviction and a sentence of not more than five years imprisonment. On the heels of the first, the second jury returned. It acquitted Moore, reporting it found no evidence that he carried the pistol.

MRS. HALL FILES FORMAL ANSWER TO $1,000,000 SUIT

The formal answer of Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, defendant in a $1,000,000 suit brought by Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett for alleged alienation of the affections of Howard L. Willett, her husband, was filed yesterday in the Superior court by Attorney Alice Greenacre.

The answer was brief and technical, no allusion being made to Mrs. Willett's charge that Mrs. Hall "destroyed and alienated the love of Howard L. Willett" on "March 1, 1931, and on many other occasions."

"The defendant comes and defends herself against wrong and injury," reads the answer in part, "and says that she is not guilty of the supposed grievance."

McGoorty Ousts Receiver; Fails to Make Accounting

Superior Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday removed Anton Meyers, 7313 Pingree avenue, as receiver of a flat building at 4220 South Michigan avenue, when it was disclosed that no accounting for income from the property had been made for 24 months. Charges also were made that Meyers allowed George Sheppley, brother of Edward Sheppley, equity owner in the property, to collect rents for him.

William Weber, 18 years old, a sophomore at the Fenwick High school, taken into custody by the sheriff yesterday because he was unable to pay a $1,500 judgment entered against him in the trial of an automobile accident case, was later freed on his own recognizance by Judge J. F. Van Keuren, who continued the hearing until today.

The youth's attorney, Simon T. Sutton, surrendered Weber at the demand of Mrs. Lucille Saliba, 35 years old, of Berwyn, who obtained the judgment in the Circuit court of Judge Daniel P. Trude. She charged in the suit that she had been injured "maliciously" by Weber through negligence. Attorney Sutton informed the court that neither the boy nor his father could pay the judgment, and indicated he would seek to file a pauper's writ.

The hearing today will be for the purpose of either granting permission for the filing of the pauper's writ or sending young Weber to the county jail. In the meantime Juvenile court authorities have interested themselves in the case in behalf of the high school boy.

'One Kiss a Year' Husband Is Sued for Divorce

Mrs. Dorothy Richards, 653 West 66th street, got only one kiss a year from her husband during the five years of their married life, she charged yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Circuit court against Fred G. Richards, 7800 Champlain avenue, a live stock broker. They have one son, Edward, 4 years old. Mrs. Richards' bill was filed by Attorney Norman Becker.

FORGET POLITICS IN PICKING TOBIN SUCCESSOR, PLEA

A delegation of parents from Chicago suburbs and from the rural districts of Cook county yesterday petitioned members of the county board not to be hasty in appointing a successor to the late County Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Tobin, who died last Thursday.

Led by Mrs. Robert Echols of Flossmoor, the delegation urged that the new superintendent of schools should be chosen primarily for his standing as an educator. Various spokesmen pointed out that the salary of $10,000 a year was large enough to attract men of high caliber, and they said that sufficient time should be allowed for these men to be proposed and considered. They asked that all political considerations be laid aside, and urged that the interests of the school children be given primary consideration.

John E. Delaney, representing Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, replied with a statement that the new superintendent of schools would be selected upon the basis of merit alone.

BULLETS SMASH WINDOW OF MAN WHO CRIES ALARM

Four bullets were fired last night through the store window of Lawrence Ansel, a haberdasher at 4739 Lincoln avenue, by members of a band of six robbers, because he shouted an alarm as they were robbing the Abrams department store at 4740 Lincoln avenue, across the street from Ansel's shop. The robbers held up twenty patrons and clerks in the department store and took $75 from Mrs. Hazel Groner, 5134 Glenwood avenue, the cashier. Later the same bandits stole $20 in a robbery of the auto accessories store at 7374 North Clark street.

DEAN BIGELOW OF U. OF C. NAMED INSULL TRUSTEE

Appointment by Referee Ends Long Fight.

Referee in Bankruptcy Garfield Charles yesterday appointed Harry Augustus Bigelow, dean of the law school of the University of Chicago, as trustee of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., bankrupt $250,000,000 investment trust.

The appointment of Dean Bigelow followed the disqualification of two trustees whose election was obtained by Attorneys Harold F. White and Lewis F. Jacobson, holding powers of attorney for a debenture holders' protective committee. The two lawyers took no part in yesterday's proceeding, because Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's order invalidating the election of one of the trustees, Attorney W. W. Wheelock, had directed the referee to ignore their powers of attorney at creditors' elections.

Ettelson Fights Election.

Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, who blocked the election first of Calvin Fentress, receiver of the investment trust, and then of Attorney Wheelock, told Referee Charles: "We wish to thank your honor for this splendid appointment, to which there could be no objection."

The hearing opened with a statement by Mr. Ettelson that, "Since two elections have resulted abortively, I can's see how anybody concerned with the best interests of the creditors in this case can object to the appointment of a trustee by the court." Daniel M. Rothschild, holder of $5,000 in debentures, arose and asked that in the interest of harmony the referee name a trustee. Other creditors spoke likewise. Then Edward A. Kandlik nominated Prof. Garfield Cox, also of the University of Chicago, but he readily withdrew the nomination when no other creditor objected to an appointment by the referee.

Retires to Chambers.

Referee Charles retired to his chambers for five minutes, returned, and announced his appointment of Dean Bigelow. The hearing was then continued to March 14.

Dean Bigelow declared that he would accept the appointment. He said he was not familiar with the case, but that he would "begin at the bottom and work my way up."

Judge Wilkerson, in a statement issued after the appointment, explained that the disqualification of Attorney Wheelock and Mr. Fentress was based entirely upon the domination of the creditors' elections by the lawyers voting with powers of attorney.

"The appointment of Dean Bigelow is an excellent one and has my approval," said Judge Wilkerson. "Nothing in these proceedings should be construed as reflecting in any way upon Mr. Fentress or Mr. Wheelock. Both of these men have served this court with great ability."

ASKS RIGHT FOR BANKS HERE TO CASH CHECKS FOR TAX PAYMENTS

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday sent telegrams to Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Senators Lewis and Dieterich of Illinois, and Representative Harry P. Beam of Chicago urging that Washington authorities permit Chicago banks to cash at once all checks given in payment of taxes. Senator Lewis and Representative Beam wired back promises to support such action.

The 5 per cent limit set by Gov. Horner in his moratorium proclamation for payments by banks in the period immediately following their reopening does not apply to checks drawn for taxes. D. F. Kelly, a member of the Sargent committee on public expenditures, predicted yesterday that prompt cashing of tax payment checks would not only stimulate the payment of taxes but would aid the Dewey committee in selling tax warrants to be used for city, county, and school pay rolls.

Tax collections yesterday totaled $12,000,000, Mr. McDonough announced. His office will be the only one in the city and county building to remain open tomorrow and Friday, when the rest of the public offices will be closed in respect for Mayor Cermak. The mayor would not have wished that efforts to collect taxes and thus pay public employes should be halted in his honor, the treasurer remarked.

WHEALAN SCORES FOES; DEFENDS COUNTY BUDGET

President Emmet Whealan of the county board issued a statement yesterday in defense of the 1933 county budget, in the course of which he charged ulterior motives on the part of some of the five commissioners who voted against passage of the appropriation measure.

"Commissioner John E. Traeger Jr. was opposed to the budget," he charged, "because we failed to make an additional appropriation of $50,000 for salaries and overtime of extra employes put on the pay roll by the old board of assessors in the spring of 1932. The commissioner was then one of the assessors. At the time the extra help was put on the pay roll the Kelly bill, which abolished the board, was pending before the legislature, and later Assessor Jacobs had to do over most of the work which the old board had done on the 1931 reassessment."

Mr. Whealan suggested that Commissioners William Busse and George Miller, the only Republicans on the board, may have had political motives in mind in voting against practically every item in the budget. Both commissioners, he said, voted for a higher budget for 1932. He stated that Commissioners Amelia Sears and Grace Fleming had voted for the individual items in the budget as they came up one by one, but then voted against final passage because it provided for payment of overdrafts incurred by various fee officers against their 1932 appropriations. They could have voted for the budget and still registered their disapproval of the overdrafts, he holds.

Certain items in the budget, particularly the tax levies for bond and interest purposes, are beyond the control of the board, Mr. Whealan pointed out. In the corporate fund, which the board does control, 1933 appropriations are 9.84 per cent below those for 1932, and appropriations in the highway fund were cut 25 per cent. The majority of these savings were eaten up, however, by the necessity of increasing bond and interest payments.

"In 1930 the county board levied $20,079,602 for its corporate and highway funds," said Mr. Whealan. "Its 1933 levies for those purposes will not exceed $11,264,000."

TAX OBJECTORS ASK STATE FOR A NEW HEARING

Offer to Pay 85 Million on Delinquent Levies.

Objectors to 1928, 1929, and 1930 real estate taxes yesterday appealed to the state tax commission for a hearing. If their petition is granted "and an equitable arrangement made" they will make tax payments totaling $85,000,000 within 90 days, the spokesman for the objectors said.

Mark Levy, chairman of the Chicago real estate board's committee on uncollected taxes, presented the argument of the objectors to State Tax Commissioner Barnet Hodes. Mr. Levy said that under the old tax law the property owners were entitled to a hearing before the now defunct board of review on their objections to the assessed valuations.

The objecting property owners were denied this hearing, Levy said, the county board informing their representatives that they would be permitted to restate their complaints in the County court. But County Judge Jarecki ruled that he was without power to act on the complaints unless fraud could be proved, Mr. Levy stated, and the objectors were denied the legal right to a hearing when they carried their cases to the state Supreme and federal courts.

Now, Mr. Levy said, they want the state tax commission to set up a reviewing agency and act on the original objections or order the board of appeals, which succeeded the board of review, to do so "and determine what is equitable and just."

Uncollected real estate taxes for those three years now amount to approximately $165,000,000, Commissioner Hodes was told.

Commissioner Hodes, who sat alone in the absence of other members of the commission, said he would hear further arguments on the petition today.

FIRST PUBLIC HEARING TODAY FOR 1931 TAX VALUATION OBJECTORS

The first public hearing of objections to assessed valuations of real property for 1931 will be held at the office of the board of tax appeals this morning. Fifty-three complaints of New Trier residents will be heard during the day. There will be no further hearings until next Monday. Chicago residents will not be given hearings for another two weeks, it was estimated.

Up to yesterday 4,000 complaints against valuations had been filed, and of this number 300 had been checked by deputy assessors.

Property owners will be allowed to file objections until March 30.

44TH HEARING IS HELD IN CITY STATE BANK CASE

The 44th hearing on the indictment charging eight officers and directors of the closed City State bank with receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent was held before Judge Daniel P. Trude in the Circuit court yesterday. The 45th hearing will be held today.

After defense counsel had argued for four and one-half hours on their motion to quash the indictment on the ground that the grand jury which voted it was illegally drawn, Assistant State's Attorney Grenville Beardsley made a reply in which he accused defense counsel of deliberately delaying the case.

"This indictment," he said, "was returned in the April term of 1931. Since then two years and 24 terms of the Criminal court have intervened. Now, when the state's attorney attempts to force this case to trial, allegations of trifling irregularities in the indictment are raised. I challenge the good faith of the counsel who made these arguments."

At thousands of Conoco stations and dealers, old cars are being re-born. Presto! They start at a spark. Z-oo-oom! They're away like a flash. The new, bronze, high-test gas does it. It's the talk of the nation today.

Volatility has been jumped way up. This gasoline is almost self-vaporizing. In the cylinder its vapor floats lightly; so dry, so sensitive that one spark sets it aflame. Higher octane rating gives it improved anti-knock quality; makes the motor fire evenly; makes power flow like the deep, swift current of a stream.

All this, plus long mileage, costs not a penny more. Why not put "wings" on YOUR car? Drive in; fill the tank; step out in a great big way.

CERMAK FAMILY APPROVES PLANS FOR 3 DAY RITES

Routes of Processions Are Announced.

Plans for Chicago's three day tribute to the slain Mayor Cermak—from the arrival of the funeral train at 10 o'clock this morning to the civic rites before 25,000 people in the Chicago Stadium on Friday—were approved in full by the members of the mayor's family last night.

The approval was given in a telephone conversation between State Senator Richey V. Graham, the mayor's son-in-law, who is on the funeral train with other members of the family, and Ald. Henry Sonnenschein, former confidential secretary to the mayor, in Chicago. Graham and Sonnenschein held their conversation during a stop made by the train at Haynesville, Ala.

Agree to Stadium Rites.

The family had earlier expressed some reluctance as to the Stadium rites, but consent was given after Ald. Sonnenschein had pointed out to Senator Graham the sentiment accompanying the idea of the services.

"We felt that since the mayor came from the masses, the masses should be allowed to participate in the services," Sonnenschein told Graham. "We thought the mayor himself would have wished it so."

As the funeral train pulls into the Twelfth street station of the Illinois Central railroad this morning it will be met by a delegation of Democratic county central committeemen, aldermen and city department chiefs. They will form an honorary escort to conduct Mayor Cermak's body to his home at 2348 South Millard avenue.

The routes of march chosen for this ceremony, for the occasion tomorrow morning when the body is taken from the home to the city hall, and for the final procession Friday from the city hall to the Stadium at 1800 West Madison street, and thence to the Bohemian National cemetery, were announced last night.

The line of march this morning from the station to the home will be north in Michigan avenue to Washington street, west to Sacramento boulevard, south to Douglas boulevard, west to Central Park avenue, south to Ogden avenue, southwest to Millard avenue, and thence to the Cermak residence.

Lies in State Tomorrow.

The casket having rested at the home through tonight, the same honorary escort will assemble at the home at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow to escort the body to the city hall. The route will be north in Millard avenue to Ogden avenue, northeast to Washington boulevard, east to La Salle street, and north to the La Salle street entrance of the city hall.

Upon arrival at the city hall the casket will be opened and the body will lie in state on a catafalque until 9 a. m. Friday when the procession of civic and military organizations will form to escort the casket to the rites at the Stadium.

The route to the Stadium will be north in La Salle street to Randolph, west to Canal street, south to Washington street, west to Warren avenue, entering the Stadium through the Warren avenue entrance.

The route from the Stadium to the Bohemian National cemetery at 5255 North Crawford avenue will be west in Washington boulevard to Sacramento boulevard, north to Humboldt boulevard, west to Kedzie avenue, north to Irving Park boulevard, west to Crawford avenue, north to the cemetery.

Council Adopts Resolution.

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution deploring Mayor Cermak's death and pledging itself to carry on his work. Ald. John J. Coughlin of the First ward presided.

Ald. Sonnenschein offered the resolution.

"We deplore the fact that the people of Chicago should be deprived of the services of a great mayor in whom they had unbounded confidence," the resolution stated. "We pledge ourselves to carry on in the spirit which animated our departed leader, to the end that the city of Chicago shall master its problems and emerge from its difficulties stronger and better than before. We further pledge ourselves to aid in the enactment of laws that will prevent the spread of sentiments that tend to deflect persons of subnormal intelligence into the field of crime."

Floral tributes from all parts of the county filled the Cermak home and the overflow was sent to the mayor's office on the fifth floor of the city hall. A floral piece attracting the most attention was one of calla lilies, accompanied by two cards. One card was simply engraved, "The President," and the other, "Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The president is sending his military aid, Col. Campbell B. Hodges, to represent him at the funeral.

DON'T GET DOWN-HEARTED ABOUT THAT NAGGING PAIN IN YOUR SIDE

Nagging pains in your side may be signs that internal poisons are robbing you of your health. Don't gamble with dangerous drugs. Don't neglect these danger signals which may mean the surgeon's knife or a long-drawn out expensive illness.

Give the harmless Cream of Nujol treatment a chance to start you on the road to health. This new form of Nujol is specially recommended for ridding the body of intestinal poisons. It never causes gripes or cramps. Never interferes with work or play. Best of all, it costs you only a few cents a day to rid your system of these poisons and to keep your bowels clear.

Make the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment a regular, daily habit, and in a short time you will realize why thousands would never be without it. It's delicious to take.

One bottle will give you more than two weeks' treatment. Stop at your druggist's and get a bottle tonight.

LOAN FROM R. F. C. LIKELY TO PAY CITY'S TEACHERS

Century Trust Fund Chicago's Idea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Federal aid for Chicago's unpaid school teachers became a distinct possibility today, following new secret negotiations between the Reconstruction Finance corporation by the Chicago citizens' committee.

It was learned a tentative application for the advance already has been filed at R. F. C. headquarters here. It is awaiting action by the board of directors. Howard Preston, manager of the corporation's Chicago office, who brought the application to Washington, is said to have told the directors that he approves granting of the loan.

Century Trust Funds.

Evolved by the Dewey subcommittee of the citizens' committee, the plan contemplated the creation in Chicago of a "Century Trust company," which would negotiate the loan and put up tax warrants as collateral. The trust company, it is understood, would be underwritten by Chicago bankers, although several persons familiar with the plan believed that business men might privately subscribe to the capital stock of the company, or that the city itself might provide its capital by investing in it a certain portion of the R. F. C. loan.

Officials of the finance corporation declined to discuss the possibilities that the loan will be granted. It was pointed out, however, that the proposal represents an entirely new method of approach, in that the advance is sought through a financial institution.

All previous efforts which have been unsuccessful, it was recalled, were promised on the belief that the corporation had authority to make an advance for the school teachers under the "self-liquidating project" section of the emergency relief act.

Believe Plan Is Legal.

Legal experts at the corporation, while stating that they had not yet been given the new application for purpose of study and decision, stated that such a proposal as is contemplated would appear to be legal under the Reconstruction Finance corporation act. No action is expected until after the banking situation has been quieted down.

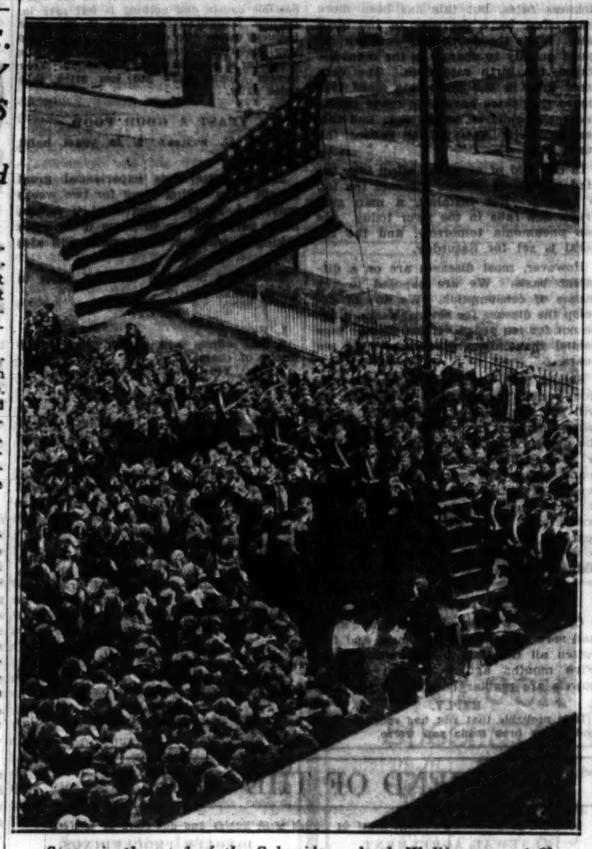

OLD WHALEBACK STEAMER TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Manitowoc, Wis., March 7.—[Special.]—The whaleback Christopher Columbus, the excursion ship which persons along the shore of Lake Michigan between Chicago and Milwaukee have set their clocks by for 40 years will be sold under the hammer in Chicago March 13 with other property of the Goodrich Transit company. The Columbus, which ran daily excursions each summer between the two cities since the world's fair of 1893 is said to have earned more money for its owners than any ship on the great lakes.

It was during the World Columbian exposition, forty years ago next summer, that the strange craft which looked top heavy came from Lake Superior and docked at Chicago. Its prow resembled a pig's head and its decks extended over the hull and lower works. During the fair it was used chiefly to carry sightseers from Jackson park to downtown Chicago.

The name Whaleback was given it because of the contour of its hull.

The floating equipment which is to be offered at the trustee's sale in Chicago next week includes, besides the Christopher Columbus, the steamers Alabama, Carolina, Illinois, City of Grand Rapids, City of Benton Harbor, City of Holland, City of Saugatuck, City of St. Joe, and Tug A. W. Luebke.

CITY AND COUNTY OFFICES WILL CLOSE TOMORROW, FRIDAY

All city offices except those of the police and fire departments will be closed tomorrow while Mayor Cermak's body lies in state in the city hall and also on Friday, the day of his funeral.

All county offices will also be closed tomorrow and Friday, except the office of the county treasurer, which will continue open to receive tax payments.

All Chicago public schools will be closed Friday. The Criminal courts will also close that day.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, requests that civic and military organizations desiring representation in the funeral procession from the city hall to the Chicago Stadium Friday submit their plans at his office today.

ARRAIGNMENT OF ZANGARA SET FOR TOMORROW

Miami, Fla., March 7.—[Special.]—Giuseppe Zangara will be arraigned at 9 a. m. Thursday, charged with the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago. The date was set by Circuit Judge Ully O. Thompson on an agreement between defense and prosecution.

A flurry of excitement swept the courtroom when deputies searched spectators for weapons before Zangara was led into the courtroom. The prisoner was attired in the same clothing that he wore on his last court appearance, when he was sentenced to serve eighty years for shooting at President Roosevelt and wounding three other persons. Zangara showed no emotion as he faced the judge.

JANET GAYNOR, FILM ACTRESS, ASKS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—Suit for divorce, charging undue jealousy and bad temper, was filed here today by Janet Gaynor, film star, against Lydell Peck, bond broker. They were married Sept. 11, 1929.

The actress complained that throughout their married life Peck displayed lack of consideration for her feelings and was uncongenial in her company. He interfered with her screen work, she said, by fits of anger and arguments over "petty and trivial matters."

He could not drink liquor, the complaint continued, without becoming quarrelsome and using abusive language, all of which led up to their separation last Dec. 14.

The petition set forth that there was no community property and that each had waived respective interests in the earnings of the other.

PROPOSE CHOICE OF NEW MAYOR IN JUNE 5 ELECTION

Democrats Pledge Loyalty to Cermak Policies.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A special election for mayor on the day of June 5 judicial election, candidates to be nominated by party conventions instead of by direct primaries, appeared yesterday to be the plan tentatively favored among the Democratic ward committeemen.

Gov. Henry Horner and County Chairman Pat Nash returned from Washington and the Cook county Democratic committee held a meeting at the Morrison hotel headquarters. Its business was confined to arrangements in connection with the funeral of Mayor Cermak. The question of a successor and of the procedure to be followed in filling the vacant chair at the city hall was not taken up. All such discussions were deferred until after the funeral. The committee is expected to meet Saturday morning to formulate a program for the filling of the vacancy.

Promise to Carry On Policies.

A solemn pledge to maintain the Cermak policies at the city hall was taken by the committeemen. A memorial resolution presented by Gov. Horner praised Mayor Cermak's conduct of his office and concluded with the following sentences, which the leaders say will be the key to their party action regarding the succession:

"We solemnly resolve to maintain undisturbed the unity in the Democratic party of Illionis which Anton J. Cermak brought about, thereby to perpetuate the political and governmental policies which he advanced and advocated; to dedicate our party to the highest type of public service; to labor unceasingly to insure continued economy in governmental administration, and not to relent in the war upon the anti-social elements until that war is won.

"We pledge ourselves to lay aside every personal ambition; to guard the harmony of our party and to reduce to a minimum Chicago's loss occasioned by the death of Mayor Cermak by carrying on as he would were he spared to us."

Favor Avoiding Primaries.

Talk among the committeemen after the meeting was informal and conjectural, but it followed along the lines of the last few days. Many of the leaders are for dispensing with primaries for the special election, with a view of saving money and of avoiding the turmoil of a primary campaign. By combining the mayoralty election with the judicial election in June, another economy would be effected, they say.

As to the suggestion that no election be held until after the world's fair, with a moratorium on politics in view during the fair, the politicians point out that a late election would have a tendency to plunge Chicago into a campaign during the fair. June they regarded as neither early nor late.

On the matter of coalition, the Democrats point out that the Republican organization is split into factions, and they ask: "Whom could we deal with as representing the Republican party?"

Up to the Republicans.

As it stands, the Democrats declare the organization will pick a strong candidate for mayor, and it will be a question for the Republican convention to determine whether it will indorse the Democratic nominee, and thus head off the turmoil of a political campaign. Already lightning rods have been stuck up for several potential Republican candidates.

At present the possible Democratic candidates who seem to figure most in the talk among the Democrats are Col. A. A. Sprague, former commissioner of public works; William H. Sexton, corporation counsel, and Edward J. Kelly, head of the south parks.

An election bill which may be amended to fit the Chicago situation is pending at Springfield and efforts may be made to put it through as emergency matter. It has passed the senate and is on second reading in the house. The legislative program is still to be mapped out and the Democrats fear hostility on the part of some of the Republicans, which might prevent the rolling up of a two-thirds vote, necessary for emergency measures.

Divided Over Acting Mayor.

Perplexity over a mayor pro tem to serve until the next mayor is elected still causes a divided sentiment among the Democratic party leaders. The city council, a nonpartisan body, has 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans. The Democratic organization, which includes the holders of the great patronage offices, believes that it will be able to control and guide the council, in its decision whether or not to pick one of its members as acting mayor.

There is talk of seeking legislation at Springfield which would cover the situation by allowing the council to pick either one of its own number or an outsider to serve as mayor pro tem and to clothe him with all the powers of a mayor.

One group is strongly for the maintenance of the present setup at the city hall, under which the city has been run ever since Mayor Cermak left for Florida by four cabinet officers whom he designated. This plan is for an interregnum and emergency enactment of a measure which would clothe this group of four with the regular powers of a mayor. Supporters of the plan argue it would cause least disturbance of the Cermak policies.

Factional Strife Feared.

What the Democrats fear is that if the city council proceeds to elect an alderman as acting mayor, factional strife will develop among followers of several candidates. Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th] was spoken of yesterday as a possible compromise.

Other Democrats who have been mentioned are Ald. Thomas A. Doyle [13th], J. M. Arvey [24th], James B. Bowler [25th], and John S. Clark [30th]. Among the Republicans spoken of are Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] and John A. Massen [48th].

Devine, in Assembly, Hints at Illinois University Scandal

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Criticism of the University of Illinois was made in the house of representatives today by John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon]. He won such support that by roll call vote the house, in effect, refused an invitation to make its customary biennial inspection of the university.

Devine's attack was made after the invitation from President Harry Woodburn Chase had been read to the house. The head of the university extended his bid in most cordial phrasing. He also said:

"The question has been raised whether the university should not be abandoned this year in order to save the state the expense which would be incurred. The question is one which university officials do not feel they should settle without at least submitting the facts to the legislature for an expression of its wishes."

Devine immediately took the floor.

Influence of One Man.

"I am glad to see the university manifesting some concern over the way state money is being spent," he said. "It is high time. I have been informed that were it not for the influence of one man the university would be faced with a scandal which would rock the state."

Devine continued, sketching the building of a 20 room house—" with seven bathrooms"—for the president of the university. He told his colleagues that their last visit to Champaign during the 1931 session cost the state $1,100. "These excursions are hippodrome stunts," he declared.

Roger F. Little of Champaign, former majority leader, proposed that a joint committe of senate and house members investigate the necessity of visiting the university. As a substitute Devine moved that the visit not be made, and his motion carried.

This action, of course, does not bind the senate, and since Mr. Chase also invited the upper chamber there undoubtedly will be a second chapter to the incident.

Retailers Protest Sales Tax.

Sales tax legislation was another object of house action. Protesters of the impost to the number of 350 storekeepers filled the galleries and three of their number were given an opportunity to repeat their stand that retailers in Illinois will be ruined if the tax becomes law.

Later in the day a house committee met with representatives of the merchants and Assistant Attorney General M. S. Winning. Mr. Winning told them that the merchants' desire for an amendment making mandatory the passing on of the tax to the consumers was unconstitutional, as was a proposed stamp tax device discussed last week. The committee finally agreed to attempt passage of the 3 per cent levy much as it now stands, but asked Winning to try and find some legal method whereby the merchants could pass the stax on as overhead.

Sales Tax Vote Tomorrow.

It is likely that the tax will come to a vote—its first test of strength in the house—tomorrow.

Comment that the house had bitten more of a chunk of economy than it could chew was heard after Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] attempted to pass his bill reducing the salaries of state officers—that of the lieutenant governor from $5,000 to $2,500, and for elected state officials from $10,000 to $7,500.

The zeal to cut expenses which the house displayed two weeks ago when they amended these bills and sent them to third reading with a whoop was lacking today. Mr. Burns asked for 102 supporting votes—enough to make the cuts effective immediately, providing they were approved by the senate. He drew only 91, a number present not choosing to vote. Further consideration was then postponed.

The brightest smiles possible, however, appeared on the members' faces when they were informed by Speaker Roe that cash for their mileage was available in the treasurer's office.

NEW GREEK HEAD ORDERS ARREST OF COUP LEADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, March 7.—Gen. Othonaios, new premier of Greece, today ordered the arrest of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras and other instigators of the coup d'etat which set up a short lived military dictatorship yesterday.

Gen. Othonaios, who is the leader of the Military league, as anti-royalist organization, declared that his only purpose as head of the government is to restore order. He said he expects to resign the premiership after this is achieved.

To hasten a return to normalcy, censorship and martial law were abolished today.

Greek politics were thrown into confusion by a swift series of events following the parliamentary election Sunday. Panayoti Tsaldaris' Royalist party won by a slim margin over the party of Eleutherios Venizelos, veteran premier.

Tsaldaris' victory enraged Gen. Plastiras and his associates. Declaring they would never tolerate a government headed by Tsaldaris, they set up a military régime. Disturbances in connection with the coup d'etat resulted in the death of one person and the shooting of 23. Gen. Plastiras headed the 1922-'24 revolutionary government.

After Gen. Othonaios had been chosen as premier at a conference last night between President Zaimis, Venizelos, and Tsaldaris, Gen. Plastiras, declaring that his purpose of forestalling Tsaldaris had been accomplished, agreed to call off his dictatorship.

The government tonight denied a rumor that Gen. Kondylis, a supporter of Tsaldaris, was leading troops against Athens.

stock market, he said, and his real estate holdings have become much reduced in value.

"The mayor never realized he was going to die, even to the end," commented Senator Graham. "Or he would have left instructions about his business. But I have been familiar with his affairs for ten years and we will be able to wind up things in good shape.

"Two days before his death he talked a little about politics but he was too weak to say much. Even then he was sure he was going to pull through and even the doctors still held out a slight hope for him then."

Mayor Redmond B. Gautier, who with an escort of Miami policemen is accompanying the body back to Chicago, revealed that not a penny would be charged the mayor's family for hospital expenses.

"He was a great man and he gave up his life like a hero," he declared. "The people of the south want to show their appreciation of the spirit that made him say to President Roosevelt: 'I'm glad it was me instead of you.'"

Members of the family, after studying the list of proposed pallbearers, decided tonight upon the following ten men: Al Horan, Patrick A. Nash, James B. Bowler, Edward J. Kelly, Thomas J. Courtney, Otto Kerner, Gov. Henry Horner, John Toman, Joseph Serhant, and M. S. Szymczak. The name of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City may be substituted for one of these names later in order that the east may be represented. Mayor Hague is coming on from Jersey City to attend the funeral.

Shortly before midnight the train, having traversed Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky, enters the mayor's home state.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GOVERNMENT BY BLACKJACK MINORITIES.

Representative Royal Johnson of South Dakota, after eight years in the house, has had enough, and, having resigned, indulges in some valedictory remarks which deserve the prayerful meditation of his countrymen.

His text is the growth of what he calls "blackjack tactics" of lobbying minorities bent upon forcing legislation for their special interests. "Any member of congress," says Mr. Johnson, "who finds arrayed against him politically five major groups of organized minorities may as well not continue in politics. If he does he must be prepared to meet class and group propaganda in every city, town, or township in his state or district." Three of these major lobbies Mr. Johnson names—the Anti-Saloon league, the American Legion, and the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Johnson does not, of course, protest against efforts to persuade and to educate public opinion for the purpose of bringing about legislation. "So long as any idealist group," he says, "educates the people in the merits of legislation it cannot injure the government. The moment, however, it adopts strong-arm methods or blackjack tactics it does injure the government, because, at that moment, it tries to make the choice of a senator or representative dependent upon his attitude upon its particular pet theory or appropriation and ignores every other economic and social public question."

Mr. Johnson asserts that this method has resulted in a tremendous turnover in the house and senate. Of the 531 senators and representatives who were in congress in 1914 only 9 senators and 16 representatives remain. "Those of us who have been in congress," he says, "can name member after member in both houses who have been 'gotten' by organized minorities because they would not support certain special legislation."

Mr. Johnson illustrates his review from the history of the Anti-Saloon league, which undoubtedly was the most ruthless practitioner of the "blackjack" method. The evil consequences of this policy, which finally reacted against the league and its cause, need no special discussion at this time. Its régime of terrorism is broken and the other major minority groups who have imitated its methods would do well to ponder its fate. They are methods which may produce striking immediate results, but they represent tyranny and tyranny does not long thrive with the American people. Mr. Johnson notes the beginning of counter organization to represent general interests of the nation and resist the inordinate pressures of the special groups. This is exemplified in the organization of the general demand for tax relief and the defeat of expenditures which are pressed upon congress by militant groups without consideration of the common welfare. The latter process can be checked only by counter organization, which, backed by a nation-wide consensus and justified by the common need of all the people, need not descend to terrorism. The majority of congressmen, we are confident, will be glad to act for the general interest of the nation if they can be assured of protection from the "blackjack" of organized minorities or pressure groups. It is too much to expect that many of them whose livelihood and career are at stake will resist pressure which threatens defeat unless they can rely upon defense from the citizen majority which is concerned with the general welfare. We cannot blame congressmen for log rolling and yielding to special pressures if we do not take the trouble to protect them when they act for the common weal.

Congress must be protected from the guerrilla warfare of special interests by effective organization throughout the country on behalf of the general interests of the nation. The paramount interest in this crisis is drastic reduction of expenditure, and it is in this field that the pressure group and blackjack tactics are chiefly operating. If by unified effort the special lobbies can be whipped in the coming congress we shall not only stay the descent of the nation into bankruptcy and ruin but we shall restore congress to its proper functioning as an agency of national government.

AN EXHIBIT OF COSTLY FOLLY.

Before the close of the late session of congress Representative Culkin of New York presented to his colleagues a summary of government waste and bad policies which we hope he will repeat for the information of the new congress. At the head of his exhibits he put the bureau of reclamation. While private finance is under a concentrated fire of criticism it is well for congress and the new administration to be reminded that the federal government has been responsible for immoderate and ill-advised expenditures which make the mistakes and excesses of private finance and enterprise look small.

Huge as has been the waste of the people's money on reclamation it does not cover the damage done. As Representative Culkin well says, "The unhappy condition in which the farmer now finds himself is largely due to this reclamation folly which has been fostered and propagandized by public officers with public moneys."

"Not one of these reclamations," he points out, "has been economically sound. All of them, whether public or private, have been subsidized either from the public treasury or by investors who have lost heavily." Initiated in the hope of making new homes for the people and of increasing the nation's wealth, the policy of reclamation has been stubbornly and selfishly maintained in spite of its demonstrated unsoundness both from the standpoint of the victimized individual and that of established agriculture and of the nation. Even the spectacle of an unmanageable and demoralizing agricultural surplus in recent years has not cooled the official zeal. It has been an outstanding example of the truth that once an agency for spending public money is set up it is almost impossible to end or even restrain it.

But the next congress will meet in circumstances which ought to compel recognition of the imperative need for the nation's relief from the hemorrhage of federal extravagance. The reclamation waste is but one of many impositions upon a sorely tried people, if one of the most obviously foolish and unconscionable. It emphasizes the paramount duty of government to defeat the special interests which thrive on federal extravagance and bring expenditure at once within the depleted means of the nation.

MR. HOOVER'S WISE VETOES.

President Hoover's final use of authority was action for the protection of the American people. He pocket vetoed—that is, did not sign—two measures appropriating over a billion dollars. One of these was the independent officers or veterans bill calling for the expenditure of more than nine hundred million dollars on veterans' administration and payments. This leaves President Roosevelt and the new congress free to act as their judgment prescribes on this major problem. Its enactment would have tied their hands for the year when it is imperative that they should be able to meet fully the critical conditions confronting them.

President Hoover also permitted to die the Smith cotton bill authorizing the purchase by the federal government of the surplus acquired by the farm board during its so-called stabilization operations. It was a bad measure and should not be revived, but in any case the new government should be, and by Mr. Hoover's wise action is, free to deal with the cotton situation, to reconsider and take its own action.

President Roosevelt and the nation have reason to be grateful to the retiring President for thus preventing unsound legislation and clearing the way for reconsideration and the well advised treatment of the serious problems involved which the country hopes will be forthcoming.

THE SOURCE OF RAILWAY PROFITS.

Profit and loss statements compiled by the railways to cover the first eleven months of the year 1932 show that of 161 class I railroads 118 failed to meet their fixed charges in the amount of $254,000,000. Forty-five railroads showed net income totaling $96,000,000, and of these five more will be thrown into the red by the deduction of the so-called emergency surcharges allowed by the interstate commerce commission in January, 1932, which must be paid to the Railroad Credit corporation.

It has been the theory of the rate making sections of the interstate commerce act that the earnings of the carriers can be adjusted by rates initiated by the interstate commerce commission. In fact, as THE TRIBUNE has maintained, it is not within the power of any government bureau to move the transportation burden from one section to another or from one commodity to another at will. An analysis of this report proves that the only roads that made money were the ones that were able to develop traffic for that most efficient operation of the railways, the trainload, at the lowest rates in the country.

Of the total of $96,000,000 appearing as net earnings, $38,000,000 was earned by three railroads serving the West Virginia-Kentucky coal fields and handling coal to the seaboard at trainload rates averaging less than six mills per ton mile. These were the three roads of the so-called Pocahontas region, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Virginian and the Norfolk and Western. Another $20,000,000 was earned by the railroad serving the Pennsylvania coal mines. A substantial part of the revenues of these roads is derived from the movement of coal to Lake Erie ports at so-called lake cargo coal rates on a trainload basis.

Another $1,850,000 was earned by terminal carriers, such as Chicago's Indiana Harbor Belt, handling traffic at switching rates. Short lines, among which are many bridge lines, such as the Lehigh and New England and the Lehigh and Hudson River, produced $6,600,000. In divisions of through rates these carriers usually earn very small percentages, but the service performed is largely trainload transfers for hitch-and-haul movements.

Aside from these lines the country's great arteries had net revenues totaling only $29,000,000, the Union Pacific absorbing nearly $20,000,000 and the Santa Fé $7,000,000 of this total. Again we find the trainload in evidence, as these lines really bridge the intermountain territory and the prairies to bring the rich products of the Pacific coast to the densely populated east.

The railroad is in its element in the transportation of carload and trainload freight and that is the traffic it should be permitted to develop, leaving distribution of less than carload freight to trucks. In this business the railways have not been anything but a misfit, as they do not perform a complete service. They did well enough before we had highways, but now they must surrender the traffic to the more flexible and less clumsy truck.

BEST WISHES, MR. DOUGLAS!

[Elgin Courier-News.]

Representative Lewis Douglas of Arizona apparently has been given about as tough a job as any man could ask for. As director of the federal budget he will be right on the firing line in the pending battle to get governmental expenditures back within reasonable limits; or, if we are going, to use a military simile, it might be better to say that he will have to direct the strategy in a battle in which victory looks—at this distance—almost impossible.

It is going to be up to Mr. Douglas—and, of course, to Mr. Roosevelt—to find some quick and certain way of winning the battle. It would be hard to imagine a more difficult task. Mr. Douglas should get the best wishes of his fellow citizens. He's going to need them.

THE HOUSE OF ROBINETTE.

So you have bought the House of Robinette,
While I, its owner, wander in the dark?
I shall release to you the chattel hold—
The garden, now luxuriant with briars,
The shadowed sun dial, broken fountain nymph . . .
The untrimmed boxwood . . . high-hung hingeless gate;
Two bloody swords the Royalists forgot . . .
Embrasured windows, looking on a lake.

And I release the moldy chandeliers,
The carved oak chairs and curiosities,
And griffin claws beneath the banquet board
Where sat so many grinning images.
You may cool your hands in bowls of cloisonne,
Where golden spickets draw the water through,
But keep away from that locked cupola
Wherefrom I write this censored codicil.

You'll find the house cold, I'm afraid, and damp—
The fireplaces are shut with chimney board,
And you may feel something like breath upon
Your cheek at night; of course you won't mind that.
But Lord of Soil, sir, you shall never be!
Nor own the doorplate stamped with "Robinette,"
For it adorns the door above me here;
Nor shall you have the key, sir—Is it late
To say I lost it to a friendly ghost?

So . . . you have bought the house of Robinette,
While I, its owner, wander in the dark?

THEY TELL US about scrip being used away back in 1907 to prove that it's not a new thing. Scrip is older than that. We're going to carry that verse around for the first bird that hops at us waving some civil war scrip.

THE NORTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE voted down the bill permitting the sale of medicinal whisky. That settles it; we were intending to go down into the Great Smoky mountains on our vacation (Why, hello, Pollyanna, when did you get back?). Of course, we could stay on the Tennessee side of the line, but there would be the danger of straying across into North Carolina, and if we were bitten by a rattlesnake we could get no medicinal whisky. Unthinking people might point out that there was small danger of our being bitten by a rattlesnake in North Carolina, but we know better. We wrote to the hotelkeeper some time ago and he said he would have a snake ready for us when we got there. Oh, well, such is life, naught but disappointment!

THE FEBRUARY returns from all over the country show a distinct decline in the number of marriages. We hate to say it in so many words, but matrimony went to a new low this Feb. as compared to all previous Febs. But it just seems these days as though everything has to go to a new low. Except the divorce records, the price of bootleg gin and taxes. But it's fine that some things are able to go upward when the general tendency is towards the center of the earth. Oh and indeed yes!

DEPRESSION AND HEALTH.

THE health of the country is improving steadily. The interruption of good times which began in 1929 and has continued since has not sufficed to interrupt the progress. The general trend which was established many years ago continues to operate and has not been materially bent in either direction by the change in economic conditions of the last few years. It is too well established and stands on a foundation of public intelligence that is too broad to be easily modified.

In certain fields there has been a tendency toward an increase in the fatal sickness rates, but this has been more than offset by a decrease in the birth rate. While the death rate does not respond quickly to change in the economic status, the birth rate does. The very great drop in the birth rate since 1929 means that there have been fewer babies and fewer children to get sick, and this has indirectly operated to reduce the death rate.

In the field of mortality effect lags behind cause. In certain diseases the lag is trifling. For instance, a man gets drunk and falls in the river today. He has pneumonia tomorrow, and the funeral is set for Saturday.

However, most diseases are on a different basis. We are exposed to the causes of consumption. We do not develop the disease for several years, maybe not for ten years. Heart disease lags behind rheumatism even more than ten years.

Should hard times continue and privation become worse than it now is we will pay the penalty in increased death rates, increase in certain diseases, and the genesis of new diseases just as surely as they did in Rumania and in Germany during the world war. The first reports of nutritional edema are coming in from certain parts of the American population. Such people have already reached the nutritional level at which some diseases find conditions to their liking.

MAY NEED NEW DIET.

P. M. writes: I have a very bad case of halitosis. I have been going to a good doctor for nearly three months and he seems to be able to do nothing for me. I have taken liver pills, stomach pills, laxatives, mouth antiseptics, soda, sulphur, etc. My teeth are perfect and about three months ago I had my tonsils removed. I have been in this condition for nearly a year. In the morning when I arise it is particularly bad. After drinking coffee or eating anything it is bad also.

REPLY.

You seem to have eliminated all the other possible causes and nothing is left save intestinal fermentations. This is the most frequent cause. To cure it you will need to very materially change your diet. This is a job for a physician and a dietitian. Your bowels should move not less often than twice daily.

YEAST A GOOD FOOD.

C. H. G. writes: 1. Is yeast habit forming?

2. The writer has experienced great benefit from taking yeast for two weeks only and, never having tried it before, he is very anxious to know if he stops taking it whether the benefits will also stop.

3. Is it a bad and harmful habit to always take yeast?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. The effects will not continue indefinitely, of course.
3. No. Yeast is a very good food.

VITAMIN B.

B. S. writes: Will you give a list of every day foods that contain vitamin B?

REPLY.

It is customary to speak of vitamin B as a group containing more than one vitamin. A name for the group that is freely used is vitamin B complex. Among the foods that are richest in the group of vitamins are the various yeasts and foods made with and from these plants, all kinds of grain germs and the foods that include them, all kinds of whole grains and sprouted grains, all kinds of nuts. Most of the stable foods customarily used contain some of this group in some amount.

NOT TOO OLD.

R. H. F. writes: Do you consider 36 too old to have one's first baby?

REPLY.

No. The danger is not much above the average.

RENEWAL AGREEMENT.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five years ago I invested my savings of $1,000 in a five year note secured by real estate. I bought this note through our local bank. The interest has always been paid. In September, when the note fell due, I consulted the bank and was informed that the note had been renewed for a period of three years notwithstanding the fact that I had not been notified. I tried to sell the note to the bank, but they would not buy it. 1. Is such renewal procedure legal? 2. What can I do to force payment? E. E. A.

1. You would not be bound to such a renewal agreement unless you had expressly or impliedly held the broker out to act for you. Even if the dealings had been such that the mortgage debtor was entitled to assume that the broker had authority it is still possible that you may be entitled to hold the broker for exceeding his actual authority.
2. If you wish to force matters you should employ an attorney.

SNOW PILES.

Chicago, March 1.—[Friend of the People.]—The owner of a gas station to the rear of our place piles snow from the driveway into the alley, blocking the traffic there. This occurs every time we have snow, making it impossible for a car to pass. We hope something will be done about this. J. G.

Report is made that the alley referred to is now open to traffic and the manager of the oil station has been notified to desist from the practice complained of in the event of future snowstorms.

DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Almost two years ago my wife filed suit for nonsupport against me. She had left me and I had letters to prove it in her own words. I stood a jury trial and was found not guilty. She has started the ball rolling again, this time with [1] a pauper charge 2. The case is to come up next month, in which she seeks to get a divorce and a money settlement. I did not file a cross bill immediately and would like to know [3] if it is yet time to fight her. W. F.

1. The pauper affidavit with a divorce bill has to do only with the excusing of court costs.
2. You mean that the summons is returnable then or that the case should be reached on the calendar?
3. You do not say how much time has gone by. It seems probable that the court would permit you to file an answer if you so desire.

ATTORNEY'S FEE.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I loaned a party a large sum of money and hold a note. I was called to California so gave the note to a lawyer to collect for me. He has done nothing and refuses to return the note. The party is working and able to pay me. What must I do to have the note returned to me? M. O.

It seems probable that the lawyer has rendered some services. If so, he is entitled to pay for those services. If you tender such payment and he still refuses to return the note then you should report the facts to the bar association.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 8, 1917.

LONDON.—The presentation by the Irish Nationalists in the house of commons of a resolution calling for the immediate application of the home rule statute to Ireland precipitated one of the most bitter sessions in months and threw the home rule question back into its old position of uncertainty. The resolution forced the government into a declaration of policy towards self-government, pronounced by Premier Lloyd George—namely, that any part of Ireland that wished home rule could have it, but that no coercion would be employed to compel Ulster to accept. At the same time the proposal drew from the Ulsterites the ultimatum that they would not accept home rule, which, coupled with the government's pronouncement, crushed all hopes for a speedy settlement.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An extra session of congress called within the next two or three weeks and the passage at once of the armed neutrality legislation are foreshadowed by developments here. It was disclosed that President Wilson is growing less confident that it would be wise, even if legal, for him to arm American ships against German submarines without the express authorization of congress. He has been advised by both Secretary of State Lansing and Attorney General Gregory that such procedure would not be prohibited by the statute of 1819, but the President is reluctant to take the step.

PARIS.—The torpedo boat destroyer Cassini of the Mediterranean patrol service was torpedoed by a submarine on Feb. 28. The official announcement says the vessel sank in two minutes, the powder magazine having exploded, and the captain, six other officers, and 100 of the crew perished.

HAVANA.—The news that ex-President José Miguel Gomez, leader of the rebels, and his entire staff were prisoners of Col. Collazo, commander of the government forces operating near the dividing line between Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces, was announced. It set the crowds about the presidential palace cheering wildly. More than 3,000 men took part in the engagement, and although full details have not yet been received, it is known that the rebels lost, besides 300 prisoners, over 300 killed and a great many wounded.

WAR SUMMARY.—British troops which captured Kut-el-Amara pursued the fleeing Turks to within twenty-eight miles of Bagdad. The Russians, following the capture of Hamadan, chased three retreating Turkish armies to the south and west. British troops advanced eastward from Suez and captured positions in Palestine and threatened the city of Beersheba. Rome reports many Austrian attacks on the Asiago plateau and elsewhere along the line were beaten off. Berlin says that the Russian armored cruiser Ryourik, 15,000 tons, struck a mine in the Gulf of Finland and was badly damaged. The warship was shortly afterward docked at Cronstadt, on the Gulf of Finland, it was added.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Postmaster General Burleson announced that after April 1 the appointments of all postmasters of the first, second, and third class would be subject to competitive examinations. Nominations will be sent to the senate as in the past, but in making selections the President will be guided by the results of examinations and will send in the names at the head of the lists. The President's forthcoming order will provide for a form of modified civil service classification under which all vacancies, whether caused by resignation, removal, or death, will be filled by competitive examinations. A hornets' nest was stirred up by the announcement at the capitol. In the discontent voiced by members of congress some of them complained that the order would take out of political life some of the most active supporters of the representatives in congress.

CHICAGO.—Health Commissioner Robertson said 4,552 bushels of potatoes had been found stored in the basement at 310 River street. They were owned by a West South Water street commission firm, his investigators were told. The firm in question, however, later denied that all the potatoes were owned by it, or that the potatoes were being held to force prices up. Dr. Robertson indicated similar discoveries had been made elsewhere. The information is being collected for the federal grand jury when it convenes here the middle of next week to look into the food situation.

TAX LIMITATION.

Highland Park, Ill., March 3.—I am a voter and wish to impress upon you the necessity for passage of a bill now pending in the Illinois house of representatives.

This bill embodies the Nixon plan for limitation of Illinois property taxes to 1½ per cent of the full, fair, cash value of all real estate and personal property. There must be a limitation of the amount of tax that can be placed on real estate and personal property if the ownership of property is to become desirable again.

If the ownership of property remains undesirable much longer our present form of government is doomed. Cook county alone in the next eleven months faces a tax bill of approximately $700,000,000, and real estate is expected to pay the major share. This amount is almost forty times the war debt payment recently defaulted by France. It is physically impossible for real estate to shoulder this burden. It must be partly shifted to where the ability to pay taxes rests. This can be done by a state sales or income tax. F. O. HINE.

CHURCH AND STATE.

New York, March 2.—Your editorial entitled "Church and State" in your issue of Feb. 5, which has belatedly come to my attention, is in some respects such a discerning criticism of the pitfalls into which churches may easily fall in their work for social welfare, and in other respects is such a grave misconception of the policies of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America that I ask the courtesy of your columns for a brief comment.

It is gratifying to note that in discussing the social ideals of the churches you agree that "they all present objectives which are generally desirable." It is also a matter of satisfaction that you clearly recognize that "all human relations and activities have a moral aspect." This is the basic fact on which the federal council stands in its social program.

You are entirely in error in assuming that the federal council undertakes to further its social aims through "dictation in the field of political action" and "the application of political pressure upon political agencies." The plain fact is that the methods by which the federal council endeavors to secure the objectives set forth in the social ideals are not those of "political pressure" upon legislatures, nor of participation in political campaigns; the council's methods are rather those of educating the people of the churches and exercising moral and spiritual influence through its teaching. The federal council's method is that which you yourself put forward as desirable when you say that it is the function of religion to work by "precept and example" and to "induce right conduct through its influence upon the human conscience."

The deliberately adopted policy of the Federal Council of Churches, in contrast with other agencies that seek to use organized political pressure, is to enlighten the conscience, to build up an intelligent understanding of social issues, and to strengthen moral convictions as to what social welfare requires. In assuming that the council attempts or contemplates any methods of political coercion you have totally misconstrued its purposes and procedures.

Nothing could be further from the principles of the Federal Council of Churches than to attempt any such "dictation in the field of political action" as you deprecate. The council does not believe in "dictation" on the part of churches or of any other organizations. It believes instead in the principle of careful study and free discussion, and places its reliance upon the ability of the churches to exercise moral and spiritual influence through holding up Christian ideals and by developing an alert and sensitive public opinion in their support. We are as much opposed to church dictation as is THE TRIBUNE, whether attempted by Protestants, or Catholics, or any other group.

SAMUEL MCCREA CAVERT,
General Secretary.

CHRISTIANITY AND SOCIALISM.

Chicago, March 1.—The statement by Robert Bulkley published in your issue of Feb. 28 hardly meets the issue raised by THE TRIBUNE editorial position commented on in my letter reproduced in the Voice of the People Feb. 18. Mr. Bulkley appears to be attempting to justify the socialistic experiments of religionists rather than demonstrating that socialism and Christianity can be reconciled.

In replying to the gentleman it is necessary first to remind him that he should make a clear distinction between the virile religion of Christ and that which Mr. Bulkley calls "wishy-washy religion," for the latter is the result of excessive dilution with socialism. Undefiled Christianity has been the most potent force in the world for more than 1,900 years. The influence of some present day interpreters, however, is waning simply because of their efforts to graft upon Christianity the thorns of Marxianism.

Mr. Bulkley advances a favorite but indefensible argument of the radical religionist by classifying Jesus as a "radical of radicals." Christ's mission on earth was to enunciate doctrines to purge humanity of sin and materialism, not to destroy law and order by establishing socialism. He made this very clear in replying to the emissaries of the high priests who endeavored to trick him into an admittance of opposition to Rome. His statement in Luke xx., 25, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's and unto God the things which be God's," is as timely a rebuke to politico-religionists of today as their counterparts of Jesus' time.

Mr. Bulkley's conclusion regarding the crucifixion also does not square with the facts of history. In Luke xxiii., 4, we read that Pontius Pilate desired to free Jesus, finding "no fault in this man." The subversive radical element demanded "crucify Him." Biblical authority states that a paid band of agitators incited the mob to force His execution. In many respects the crucifixion of Christianity in our day bears a striking similarity to the persecution of Jesus.

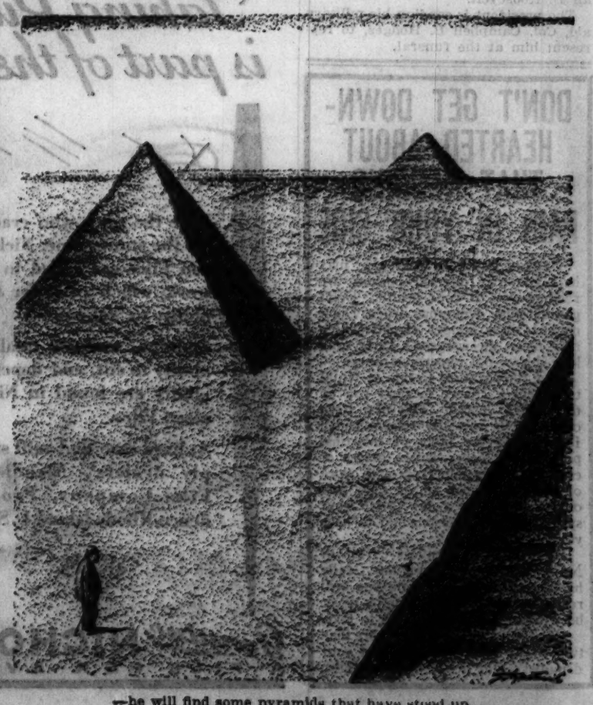

One way to settle the argument is to ascertain the views of socialist authorities in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, where 100 per cent socialism has been enforced for fifteen years. In the official code issued by the commissar of public instruction will be found Stepanoff's opinion that: "We must so act that each blow aimed at the traditional structure of the church, each blow aimed at the clergy, shall attack religion in general. . . . We must glide from orthodoxy directly into atheism." Jaroslavasky-Goubelman, commissar of inspection, states: "Communism and religion are hostile the one to the other, and cannot be placed side by side." Lunacharsky, commissar of public education, has written: "We hate Christianity and Christians. . . . Christian love is a hindrance to the development of the revolution. . . . We must know how to hate, for only at this price can we conquer the universe."

The individuals quoted are tried and trusted ministers of socialism; they know that Christianity and socialism are absolutely irreconcilable. On their word it must be agreed that a sincere Christian minister cannot also be a socialist. The warning of Jesus Christ in His sermon on the mount is particularly applicable to that type of minister who acknowledges himself to be a socialist: "Beware of false prophets which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." [Matthew vii., 15.]

MARTIAL LAW IN PEIPING; PANIC AS JAPS DRAW NEAR

Nipponese Capture Pass Through Great Wall.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 8 (Wednesday). —(AP)—Gen. Tadashi Kawahara's 16th brigade of Japanese infantry occupied Koupeikow, a pass in the Great Chinese Wall, at noon today.

BULLETIN.

PEIPING, March 8 (Wednesday). —(AP)—Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, whose conduct of the Chinese defense against the Japanese invasion of Jehol province has met with severe criticism, today resigned as military overlord of North China. Gen. Chang accepted blame for the defeat in Jehol and requested the national government to issue a mandate relieving him of all posts and appointing a substitute.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 8.—[Wednesday.]—Martial law has been proclaimed in Peiping, and confusion reigns in the city. All the gates are carefully guarded. Only uniformed soldiers are allowed to enter. The legation quarter, however, is calm.

A great battle is expected at Koupeikow pass in the Great Wall near Peiping, where the Chinese are concentrating troops after their retreat from Jehol province and are likely to put up their first real stand against the Japanese invasion. Japanese planes bombed the Chinese positions at Koupeikow yesterday. There were also several preliminary clashes between Chinese and Japanese forces a few miles north of Koupeikow.

The Tokio Asahi reports that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese commander-in-chief, will go to Peiping soon to take charge of the situation personally. Marshal Chiang, it is reported, fears that Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang, north China war lord, will flee and that his position and power will fall to either Gen. Feng-Yu-hsiang, the "Christian general," or Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, both of whom are deadly foes of Chiang.

Russia Refuses to Help League.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 7.—The soviet government in a crisp note to the league of nations tonight flatly refused to participate in the committee set up by the league on Feb. 24 to handle the Sino-Japanese dispute.

(In addition to inviting Russia to sit in on the committee the league also invited the United States. Secretary of State Stimson in a reply to the league said the course of the Geneva body in the Sino-Japanese affair had the "general indorsement" of the United States, but did not definitely accept the invitation to participate in the committee.)

The soviet note, which was signed by Maxim Litvinov, foreign commissar, said:

"It is impossible for the moment to join in the decisions of the league when 13 out of the 22 participants in the consultative commission maintain no relations with the U. S. S. R. and therefore are hostile to it. Obviously such a committee hardly would be able to coördinate its actions with the soviet union, since the latter has no possibility of negotiating with a majority of the members."

Air School Flees.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 8.—[Wednesday.]—As a result of the appearance of a Japanese airplane carrier in Hangchow bay, south of Shanghai, Chinese authorities yesterday hurriedly transferred the government's aviation school, which is manned by American teachers, from Hangchow to a new air base somewhere in the interior, probably in Anhwei province. Fifteen American instructors, headed by Col. John Houett, have entrained for the new destination.

Another group of American aviators passed through here last week to Canton, where they will serve as instructors in the Canton aviation school.

GERMANY SUPPRESSES NUDIST MOVEMENT AS MENACE TO MORALITY

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, March 7.—Capt. Hermann Goering, minister without portfolio, today ordered suppression of the nudist movement as constituting "one of the greatest dangers to German culture and morals.

"Though it is desirable in the interests of public health that sun, air, and water be drawn on to serve the human body," the order said, "so-called culture of the nude must be repudiated as a cultural aberration. In women it deadens the sense of shame and in men it destroys respect for womanhood, and thus the prerequisites for any real culture."

The owners of open air tracks, swimming pools, baths, and other places now used by nudist clubs must annul agreements with them. All propaganda meetings, exercises, or "any other arrangements" by nudist associations are forbidden.

HEAD OF CHICAGO PACKING CONCERN GRAVELY INJURED

Harry Manaster, 50 years old, head of a Chicago packing company bearing his name, was taken to the Methodist hospital in Gary yesterday with a skull fracture sustained in a manner that is not clear. His chauffeur, who was with him, said he was taken ill and fell on a rock while in the Gary neighborhood.

Mr. Manaster remained unconscious, with what physicians said was a 50-50 chance of recovery. Later he was brought to the Michael Reese hospital in Chicago. In his pocket was found a note which read: "Brother and family—Sorry—Love—Dad." He had been seriously ill of a stomach ailment, relatives said, and was greatly worried over the banking condition.

The chauffeur, Chester Waters, was released after Deputy Sheriff Monett of Gary had discovered, alongside a dunes road 14 miles east of Gary, a blood stained rock with which Manaster is supposed to have injured himself.

Waters said he called for Mr. Manaster yesterday morning at his home, 5052 Ellis avenue. Manaster told him, he said, that he wanted to take a ride before going to his office at 1018 West 37th street. They drove through Gary, at his master's direction, and out on the Dune Acres road, where Mr. Manaster left the car, Waters said.

Mr. Manaster's brother, Henry, and his attorney, Charles Aaron, expressed the belief that Manaster had fainted, fallen, and struck his head on the rock. The Gary authorities held to the belief that the wounds were self-inflicted; that worry and illness were responsible.

'REDUCE NAVIES OR U. S. BUILDS,' ROOSEVELT PLAN

Swanson Gives His First Talk as Chief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—There are many indications that the Roosevelt administration plans to strengthen the attitude taken by the United States at the Geneva disarmament conversations which have been going on intermittently for more than a year.

One report today was that Norman Davis, one of the American delegates to the conference, but now in this country, had been instructed by President Roosevelt to advise the other powers that this country would insist on quick action on a reduction program.

Credence was lent to this report today by Secretary of the Navy, Claude A. Swanson. At his first press conference, he stated he favored construction of the American fleet up to the levels of the London treaty as rapidly as possible, unless agreement was reached further reducing the American quota. His expressed opinion was that the United States should be kept built up to whatever ratios are permitted to this country by treaty.

For London Treaty Ratio.

"I think," he said, "that every effort should be made to keep the ratios of the London treaty. My opinion is that the fleet should be built up as quickly as possible to the ratios prescribed by the treaty. Whether we shall get the ratios by increases or decreases is a question for the state department.

"One proposition made at Geneva was that other nations stop construction until we catch up. Under present conditions we should aim at the London treaty strength of 1,186,000 tons."

While reports have been circulated that the United States might threaten to leave the conference, unless a reduction agreement was reached quickly, these rumors have lacked confirmation at the White House. An attempt was made last summer by some members of the American delegation at Geneva to persuade the Hoover administration to insist on action on the Hoover program for from 25 to 33 per cent arms reductions. The state department was urged to advise the other powers that this country would quit the conference if it was not adopted. Nothing came of the recommendations, however.

Swanson Also Delegate.

Secretary Swanson, at that time in Geneva as one of the American delegates, was known to favor adoption of a firmer attitude by this country on the arms reduction question. His advice to the new President will be offset somewhat by the attitude of Mr. Davis that new reductions can be attained.

The American fleet on Jan. 1 this year was 458,000 tons under London treaty strength. To bring the fleet to treaty level would require the construction of close to 300,000 tons of ships and the expenditure of close to a billion dollars within the next four or five years.

If a program to build up to treaty strength is adopted it will cover at least ten years.

BRITAIN WILL MAKE FINAL EFFORT TO SAVE DISARM CONFERENCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Prime Minister MacDonald and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, plan to leave London for Geneva on Thursday in a final effort to salvage the world disarmament conference. It is emphatically denied here that they have any plan of action. They will survey the situation on their arrival and take the course which seems best in view of conditions.

It is hoped that Premier Daladier of France and Chancellor Hitler of Germany will also attend. It may be possible to get the French and German leaders together on some arrangement which will prevent a breakdown of the conference, even if it does not accomplish much immediately in the way of positive disarmament.

Unofficially there is some talk about drawing up an instrument setting forth the progress already made and adjourning the conference for a year or two in the hope that world conditions will improve in the meantime.

The banking crisis in the United States has made it more difficult to arrive at any final solution, as it was expected America would be in a position to enter a general conference shortly in which debts, tariffs, arms, and many other questions would be treated, but this now must be postponed a month or two, it is recognized.

LINDSAY CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT AIDS ON DEBTS

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—For the first time since the Roosevelt administration took office the British ambassador visited the state department today and for more than an hour discussed in a general way the debt and economic questions which figure so prominently among America's foreign problems.

The British envoy, Sir Ronald Lindsay, conferred with William Phillips, undersecretary of state, and Raymond Moley, assistant secretary, both of whom have just entered upon their duties. About a week ago he and Cordell Hull, then secretary of state designate, exchanged views.

Much of the same ground covered in the Hull-Lindsay conference was understood to have been gone over with Phillips and Moley, the British desiring to acquaint American officials thoroughly with their position. Lindsay said afterward that his first meeting with Phillips and Moley had been unofficial and introductory.

Through Secretary Hull the Roosevelt administration has made plain its contention that any nation seeking revision of its debt to the United States must first declare itself on broad tariff policies and the lowering of international trade barriers. The London government has indicated some reluctance to any bargaining in return for an adjustment of its debt.

Until success can be expected with some degree of assurance, it is understood on high authority that Great Britain will not send a delegation to this country seeking a revision of its debt. Accordingly much of the burden will rest on the British ambassador and on Robert W. Bingham, Louisville publisher, who is expected soon to be appointed ambassador to the court of St. James.

Bingham visited the state department today and talked with Undersecretary Phillips at some length.

MANY GREET HOOVER WHILE ON WALK IN STREETS OF NEW YORK

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—Well rested and in fine spirits after two days as a private citizen, Herbert Hoover arose early today and left his 33d floor suite in the Waldorf Astoria Towers for a brisk 40 minute walk before starting a day of private conferences and the reception of old friends.

Long before the city streets were clogged with their daily crowds, Mr. Hoover, accompanied only by his secretary, Lawrence Richey, walked from the Waldorf at Park avenue and 50th street to Fifth avenue and up the avenue as far as Central park, before turning back.

It was well before 8 o'clock, but many early pedestrians and motorists recognized the sprucely-groomed, heavy-set figure, with the hair grayed at the temples.

LEAGUE CALLED IN EXTRA SESSION ON LATIN WARS

GENEVA, March 7.—(AP)—The league of nations council will meet in special session tomorrow to deal with the dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia over the Gran Chaco and also with the hostilities between Peru and Colombia over the Leticia territory.

The representatives of Ireland, Spain, and Guatemala, exercising the friendly right conferred by Article 11 of the league covenant, today invoked league intervention in the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco.

The three representatives, who constitute the league Gran Chaco committee, requested Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league, to call a special session of the council.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. VOTES TO SET UP PUBLICITY BUREAU

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—The managing committee of the Republican state central committee today authorized the opening of a publicity bureau whose chief functions will be that of pointing out the faults of the Democratic administration and the Democratic majorities of the two houses of the general assembly.

Holiday on Politics.

That was the principal business transacted at a meeting in the Abraham Lincoln hotel called ten days ago but cut short because of the death of Mayor Cermak. Chairman John F. Tyrrell, in opening the session, said that only necessary business would be transacted and that there would be a moratorium on politics because of the mayor's death.

"It is with extreme regret," he said, "that this meeting must be held at this time, but it seemed impossible to cancel the arrangements which had brought members from distant parts of the state. We all, particularly those of us from Chicago, are still stunned by the news from Miami, but there is certain business that must be disposed of at this time. I suggest an early adjournment as soon as it is taken care of."

Last Trench of Party.

The idea of a Republican news bureau seeking to serve the same purpose as did the Democratic news bureau at Washington during the Hoover administration was proposed at the Knox dinner at the Hamilton club in Chicago soon after the November election. At that time the Republican minorities in the assembly were described as the "last trench" of the party in the state and it was agreed that a bureau of anti-Democratic criticism would be opened at Springfield.

WILL R. WOOD, EX-LAWMAKER OF INDIANA, DIES

Ready for Mediterranean Cruise as End Comes.

New York, March 7. — [Special.] — Will R. Wood of Indiana, for eighteen years a representative in congress and once a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, died here today at the home of M. J. Meehan on the eve of a two months' cruise in the Mediterranean. He was to have sailed this afternoon.

WM. WOOD. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The veteran congressman was 72 years old and served as the last Republican chairman of the house appropriations committee. On several occasions he had served as chairman of the Republican national congresional committee. He was defeated for reëlection last November by George R. Durgan, a Democrat.

Hoped for Complete Rest.

Details of his death were few. It was announced in Washington by his secretary, Miss Jessie Lovell, who had served in that capacity many years.

"He appeared to be feeling very well when he left here shortly after noon yesterday, although he was very tired," Miss Lovell said. "He wanted a complete rest and he chose the trip on the water. He had made no definite plans for the future except to return to Washington and engage in business."

Three days ago Mr. Wood completed his ninth consecutive term in the house. He went there after serving for eighteen years in the Indiana state senate. One of the last speeches delivered in the Seventy-second congress was by Representative Woodrum of Virginia, Democratic member of the appropriations committee, who praised Mr. Wood.

Friend at Bedside.

Mr. Wood arrived at the Meehan home last night for a visit before sailing. He arose this morning about 9 o'clock and started to shave when he became ill. He went back to bed and before medical aid could be summoned he was dead.

J. R. WASHBURN, BANK OFFICIAL, TAKEN BY DEATH

John R. Washburn, vice president of the Continental Illinois National bank, died yesterday after a brief illness in his home at 274 Linden Park place, Highland Park. He was 55 years old.

J. R. WASHBURN.

Mr. Washburn began his banking career in Chicago in 1896 when he went to work for the Fort Dearborn National bank as a messenger boy, in 1907 he was elected assistant cashier of the Continental National bank, his first official position.

At the time of his death he was chairman of the exchange committee of the Chicago Clearing House association and vice chairman of the commerce and marine commission of the American Bankers' association. In 1910 he was vice president of the Illinois Bankers' association.

Mr. Washburn was married in 1904 to Nell Wilcox of Highland Park, who survives with one daughter, Sally. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the home.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: "Lucky" Knife?

U. S. AGENT SUED BY BROTHER, WHO CHARGES FRAUD

Paralytic Files Bill to Set Aside Trust.

Charges that Louis Bergman, an internal revenue agent, defrauded his brother, Ralph, of Lawrence, Kas., of $55,000 and induced the latter by coercion to set up a trust fund of $120,000, were made in a suit filed yesterday in the United States District court. The suit, filed in behalf of Ralph Bergman, asked that the trust be set aside. The defendants are Louis Bergman, his wife, Edna, and the First Union Trust and Savings bank, as trustee.

The bill of complaint, filed by the law firm of Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson and Cole, said that the brothers, Ralph and Louis, received $40,000 each at the death of their father, Wolfe, a Lawrence business man.

Stricken With Paralysis.

By careful investment Ralph increased his inheritance to $200,000 by January, 1928, when he suffered a paralytic stroke while employed in a Lawrence clothing store.

Louis Bergman and his wife, Edna, visited a Lawrence hospital, according to the bill, convinced Ralph that he was not getting the proper medical care, and brought him to Chicago. Then, it is charged, Louis and his wife fraudulently induced Ralph to give them the keys to a safe deposit box in Lawrence, where the $200,000 in stocks and securities was kept.

After bringing the $200,000 to Chicago, the bill recited, Louis Bergman kept his brother a virtual prisoner in an apartment at the Monterey hotel, and threatened him with insanity proceedings.

Charges Brother Took Funds.

Ralph turned over $55,000 to his brother and signed the trust agreement in order to obtain his freedom, according to the bill which says that the income from the trust was to go to Ralph until his death, and was then to be transferred to Louis and his wife during their life time.

At their death the income was to go to indigent Jewish students at the University of Kansas.

The defendants purposely injected an "eleemosynary interest" into the trust fund, the suit charged, because they thought a court would hesitate to set aside such a trust.

DEMAND WAGE CUT FOR BUILDING TRADE WORKERS

A wage reduction to a flat rate of $1 an hour for skilled building mechanics was demanded yesterday by contractors who are members of the Building Construction Employers' association. The present wage scale runs from $1.37½ down to $1.31½ an hour.

Although the present contract expires on Saturday, the employers will not ask that the new $1 an nour wage scale take effect until May 31, according to Edward M. Craig, secretary of the association. The extension, he said, was agreed upon by the contractors because of the national banking moratorium.

Mr. Craig said that the wage scale of unskilled workmen, including laborers and apprentices, would be cut down in proportion.

7 NEGROES WIN VENUE CHANGE ON RAPE CHARGE

Alabama Case Shifted from Scottsboro.

Scottsboro, Ala., March 7.—(AP)—Scene of the fight for freedom of seven Negroes facing charges of rape in the "Scottsboro case" today was shifted to Decatur, 75 miles west of here, by Judge A. E. Hawkins, who granted the defense motion for a change of venue.

Hopes of the defense for an early trial were checkmated, unless a special term of court is called, as the Morgan county Circuit court, which now has jurisdiction, does not meet again until June.

"I had just about as soon try the cases here," said Irvin Schwab of New York, member of the counsel employed by the International Labor Defense to defend the Negroes. "They are the same class of people there."

All Held in Jail.

The defense motion to quash the indictment against the Negroes because no Negroes were included in the grand jury returning the true bills was held in abeyance until the trials are called in the new court of jurisdiction.

The Negroes were not brought here from Kilby prison at Montgomery, where they have been held since April 9, 1931, when they were sentenced to the electric chair.

Nine Negroes were taken from the freight train at Paintrock, Ala., on March 25, 1931, and charged with raping two young white girls who were "hoboing" their way home to Huntsville, Ala.

A posse, acting on information furnished by several white youths that the Negroes had thrown them from the train at Stevenson, Ala., made the arrests.

Saved by U. S. Supreme Court.

After the sentences had been passed here on eight of the Negroes and the ninth had won a mistrial an appeal to the Alabama Supreme court was made and on March 25, 1932, that court affirmed the sentences of seven, but held the eighth, Eugene Williams, was a juvenile.

The United States Supreme court reversed the death sentences of the other seven and remanded the cases for retrial on the grounds that because of prejudice they had not been given a fair trial.

R. W. STANSBURY OF CHICAGO DIES IN MIAMI HOTEL

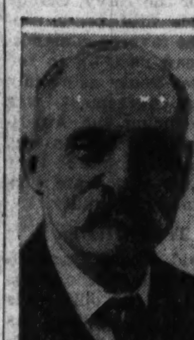

Ralph Waldo Stansbury, investment banker associated with Thompson, Ross & Co., 29 South La Salle street, was found dead in his hotel room at Miami, Fla., last night, according to word sent to his father, E. W. Stansbury, 2333 East 70th street.

Beside the body were two empty medicine bottles and a note which read: "I am very sick. If anything happens to me please notify E. W. Stansbury, Chicago."

Mrs. Stansbury Sr. said that his son had gone to Florida recently to rest. He was 42 years old and a graduate of the University of Chicago. He had been associated with Chicago investment banking firms since 1914 and, until last summer, when the firm was dissolved, was a partner of Stansbury & Co. His home was at 7237 South Shore drive. His widow, Mrs. Elsie Stevens Stansbury, and two children survive. Mr. Stansbury served in France as a first lieutenant with the 10th field artillery.

Lorin N. Moulton, civil war veteran and a resident of Chicago for the last 40 years, died yesterday in his home at 7303 Luella avenue. He was 86 years old and next August would have celebrated, with Mrs. Moulton, their 65th wedding anniversary.

L. N. MOULTON.

Mr. Moulton, a native of Chicago, enlisted with the 64th Illinois infantry in 1864 at the age of 18. He was with Sherman's army in the march through Georgia and after the war paraded before President Lincoln.

After being mustered out Mr. Moulton returned to Illinois and was married. With his bride he went to Indiana to become a farmer. They remained on the farm until Mr. Moulton retired in 1893 and moved his family to Chicago.

The widow, Mary, and three sons, Charles N., Arthur H., and Roy L. Moulton, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Burial will be at Fairmount cemetery.

John W. Embree Funeral Rites to Be Held Today

Funeral services for John William Embree, pioneer Chicago lumberman, will be held this afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church. Burial will be private in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Embree, who was 72 years old, died Monday in his home at 3314 Lake Shore drive. Death was caused by injuries suffered two weeks ago when he fell in his home. Mr. Embree was president of the Rittenhouse & Embree Lumber company. He is survived by his widow, Caroline; two sons, John W. Jr. and Henry Stevens Embree, and a sister, Mrs. Maey A. Pidgeon.

C. W. STEWART FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW 1 P. M.

Funeral services for Charles W. Stewart, 85 years old, financial writer for the Federation News, organ of the American Federation of Labor, who died in his home, 935 Glengyle place, Monday, after an illness of several months, will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Graceland chapel, with burial in Graceland cemetery.

Born in Manchester, Vt., the son of a minister, on March 21, 1847, Mr. Stewart enlisted in the 192d New York infantry when he was 16 years old, having removed to New York with his parents. His regiment was part of Hancock's corps in Sheridan's army at the time of Lee's surrender. After the close of the war Mr. Stewart moved to Iroquois county, Illinois, where he remained until 1884, moving to Hastings, Neb., where he edited a newspaper. In 1914 he came to Chicago.

Surviving are his three daughters, Mrs. C. K. Mansfield of Garland, Wyo., and Miss Evelyn Marie Stewart and Mrs. Frances G. Allen of Chicago.

Don't take calomel!

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver which does not yield sufficient bile—causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep bile flowing freely —correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Won't eat it! Don't like my dinner!"

As he said it, small Bill, aged 4½, pouted disgustedly at his plate of ground beef ball, mashed potatoes, buttered turnips, toast, milk, and creamy tapioca.

And why? Because Bill had met just this combination at his mid-day meal before. And here is what had happened: That brown, crusty meat ball wouldn't stay still. And when he finally had backed it up against the mound of potato, the crust had proved too much for his small fork and his inexperience in cutting technique.

Disappointed here, he had tried the mashed potatoes, but they were already cooled and had taken on that starchy, stiff, choking texture. Then turnips, since mother was watching him anxiously. But the first big piece was too much for his small mouth, and when he had tried to mash it, it had dropped and gone scooting across the floor. Even the toast was a disappointment. The dry mass had stuck in his throat. And as for the tapioca, it was the way mother always made it—"pully" and without any taste—just lumps! Really the milk was the only thing that he could eat.

And Bill wasn't being stubborn. He was right. And he had proved once again that what happens at meal time depends a great deal upon what has happened out in the kitchen during that meal's preparation—that it isn't the food but the way we prepare it that decides whether it is to go into the small Bills under our care or out the back kitchen door.

So why not revamp that menu with a thought to the child's reaction as he approaches the plate, and as he investigates each different food?

The dinner, as served, lacked color and tartness. Until Bill reaches the age of 5, he, perhaps, won't be able to name colors. Yet, bright, high colors may be associated with pleasant memories of food. More, the menu lacked a tart food. A solution for both of these at once would have been a tomato sandwich instead of the toast which was a throat sticker, and a mixed fruit dish [cut small] for dessert instead of the "pully" bland tapioca.

Probably dietitians in nursery schools have about the best chance to tell us what the average child likes or cannot or will not tackle in the way of food. Nobody runs true to a pattern, but averages are good indicators. So here are a few findings in the nursery school in one of our state colleges: Pre-school children enjoy floating island hugely, but refuse the same pudding when it has tapioca added. This may be because so often the tapioca is wrongly cooked. It was found that a creamy tapioca in which egg formed the main thickening agent and where the tapioca was cooked in milk was a bit more popular. Pieces of peach, raisin or pineapple mixed into the pudding was a bit more popular. Usually the teachers found that rice and tapioca pudding went best after a watery vegetable meal rather than one featuring starchy vegetables. Usually meat is enjoyed best by the young child if it is in the form of ground round steak baked in a loaf. A quick searing at high heat followed by long baking at low heat gives a juicy, well liked food.

All this, of course, doesn't mean that we always should serve foods in the preferred ways, and teach no others. Occasionally offer a well liked food in a less popular preparation, to teach a liking for it.

And finally, between the ages of 2 and 4, a child should come to like the vegetables, fruits, simple desserts, and meats which he should learn to eat because of their value in his diet. But don't serve them in large quantities. Three bites of a new food are plenty. Later the amount may be increased. Then if these foods do not prove popular, thereafter serve them each time with another food which ranks as a favorite.

And lastly, give thoughts each day to making the pre-schoolers' meals pleasing combinations of colors, flavors, and textures, especially fighting shy of plates of all-wet or all-dry foods and pale, anemic looking dinners.

Pope Pius Urges Americans to Make Rome Pilgrimage

VATICAN CITY, March 7.—(AP)—The pope in an interview today with Msgr. Fumasoni-Biondi, former papal legate at Washington, requested him to convey his blessing to the American people and expressed hope that, within the limitations of the financial situation, America would send a large representation of holy year pilgrims to Rome.

Color or Fabric Contrast Is Effective in Frock of Quaintly Modish Design

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The beauty of this lovely dress is that either contrasting colors or materials can be used. The original dress was made of a black crinkled crêpe satin, with the reverse side for the contrast. A tomato red rough silk crêpe combined with black would also be chic.

The pattern, No. 3249, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material with 1¼ yards of 39 inch contrasting.

Have Children Tackle Problem Independently

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Take this over to the hardware store and get the money back," said a mother to her 11 year old daughter.

"O, mother, I hate to take things back," she wailed. "I'll do any errands you want me to, but I hate trying to get the money back for things."

"I know you do, Helen," her mother answered, "but I need this cash and the bank is closed. Besides, he didn't send me what I ordered."

"But that short fat clerk is always so disagreeable," was the next objection.

"Well, if he says anything you tell him that I didn't order this kind of mop. And if he argues about it just tell him your mother says she wrote out the order so there wouldn't be any mistake. And then if he can't find the order you tell him to ask Mr Hixbie himself—he knows all about it and——"

"All right, mother I'll go, but don't tell me anything more to say, pleeez—I'll get all mixed up. If I have to do it, I'll manage it the best I can, myself."

When the door had closed behind her her father spoke a word of wisdom to his wife.

"This is one of the times when I see a mistake. Can you stand it?" he said with a twinkle.

A great many of us parents could stand that very criticism. Are you one?

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CASE 212.

"This is Claude Price speaking, inspector. Reginald Madison has been shot! Suicide? I don't know!"

"I had been with Madison for an hour discussing the development of a summer resort we had purchased," explained Price to Prof. Fordney and Inspector Kelley. "While we were talking he received two phone calls. Both seemed to upset him terribly. He offered no explanation as to who they were from, but the last, I believe, was from John Ney, who lives next door, saying he would be over in five minutes. Madison protested vehemently and hung up. I don't know whether or not the first call was from a man or woman. After the second call Madison asked me, rather abruptly, to amuse myself in the billiard room on the third floor for half an hour. I'd been up there only fifteen minutes when I heard the shot and what I thought was the closing of a door.

"I ran down and called you immediately upon seeing Madison dead. By the way, Ney and Madison are bitter enemies."

The pistol which killed the dead man was lying five feet from the body. The only set of fingerprints on the receiver were Price's, but the ones on the gun were too indistinct to be identified. Fordney, failing to find any papers referring to the "resort deal," informed Kelley in an undertone of a fact that caused the inspector to place Price under arrest.

WHAT WAS IT?

[See solution on page 15.]

Feathered Hats Rushing to Heads of Fashionables

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—(Special.)—Every woman in Paris who makes any pretensions to being chic has at least one feather, or feather trimmed hat this spring. The milliners make their feather hats out of divers plumage. Reboux sticks to aigrettes and ostrich feathers. Marie Alphonsine uses the plumage of various small birds and coque feathers. Patou makes ravishing toques of natural pheasant feathers.

The hat made entirely of feathers is, naturally, very dressy, and is worn chiefly for dinner and theater in Paris. The tiny pancake toque at the top of our sketch today is a Le Monnier feather hat for evening. It is made of pale blue minoche feathers.

In the center is Reboux's celebrated aigrette hat, which is worn by Baronne de Rothschild, Madame Munoz, and other super-smart Parisiennes. It has a little satin visor, like that of a cap, which is tipped rakishly over the right eye.

Display Crafts at Winnetka Woman's Club

N. Shore Residents Show Skill in Arts.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Leaden skies and a chill wind yesterday without, but a pleasant aroma of spring under the low red roof of the Winnetka Woman's club, with bowls of yellow daffodils and lavender tulips here and there about the dining room and parlors. It was the club's annual arts and crafts exhibit, with a hundred or more north shore residents revealing their secret ambitions as painters and sculptors, wood carvers and needleworkers.

The same exercise was going on in town at the Casino, with the Junior leaguers exhibiting their talents in art and photography. A few energetic young women visited both shows.

Mrs. J. Waller Marshall was one of them. She set a table of the luster ware she does so beautifully for the Winnetka exhibit. The table was stunning in oyster white and black—a white satin cloth bordered in black, plates, goblets, and urns of the same combination, and a centerpiece cleverly made of black plaited paper. The centerpiece, as Mrs. Marshall explained, will expand or contract to fit the table.

Mrs. Montague Ferry, chairman of the exhibit, brought over for display a half dozen pieces of pottery and in one of the flower bowls she placed a bunch of silvered weeds, cat tails and skunk cabbage leaves preserved with a silver lacquer.

A boat worth a second look yesterday was the clipper ship made by young John Vennema Jr., just past 14 and a student at the Winnetka Country Day school. The Vennema family proved its artistic talents, for Miss Marcelle Vennema showed a piece of her sculpture and Mrs. Vennema one of her still life oils.

And then there were the wood carvings of Mrs. J. O. Ely which she had to gather up from all the friends who have asked for them the last year. One of them depicted early Winnetka—the log cabin store and post-office that later became a part of the fashionable Christ church parish house. Now the Winnetka telephone building stands on this site.

Best of all about the reproduction of the Van Wagenen Allings' house in Lake Forest, done both in oils and petit point, was the stained glass window. It was under this window that Mrs. Alling as Bertha Baker was married years back and under it too that Bertha Alling exchanged wedding vows with Charles H. Brown. Mrs. Alling did the oil painting and from this Mrs. Brown is doing the petit point.

Mellon and Daughter Are Guests of King and Queen

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Andrew Mellon, retiring American ambassador, and his daughter, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, were guests of King George and Queen Mary at a luncheon at Buckingham palace today. The king, who has been suffering from a cold in his head, is reported improving steadily. The Prince of Wales took the king's place at a levee at St. James palace.

Take Pay Cut or Jobs Stop, Movie Edict

Hollywood, Cal., March 8 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Cessation of all activities at all motion picture studios in Hollywood was ordered today by the Association of Motion Picture Producers unless drastic cuts in salaries and wages for an eight week period, due to the banking situation, were taken by all employés and artists.

The board of directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, meeting shortly after the ultimatum was given them by the producers, recommended to its members that they take the proposed reductions.

For salaries of more than $50 weekly, a cut of 50 per cent would be made with a minimum salary of $37.50 established. Those earning less than $50 weekly would take a 25 per cent cut with a minimum of $15 a week. The cuts would be retroactive starting March 6.

"The studios no longer can exist unless substantial cuts in pay are made," said a spokesman for the producers.

The studios will remain open, it was announced, pending the action of employés regarding the proposed reductions.

Universal Studios Suspend Contracts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 7.—[Special.]—The bank moratorium was brought home to the motion picture colony today, with one studio suspending all contracts of actors, executives, and directors for an indefinite time and several other large studios requesting their employés to take voluntary pay cuts or take vacations at this time. The movie pay roll is about $1,500,000 a week. An executive said: "We can't meet pay rolls without money."

Universal studios were the only ones to take action against permanent contracts. The wholesale action was taken by Carl Laemmle Jr., executive head of the studio. Today's action affects only about fifty persons who held holdover contracts. Three weeks ago more than 800 persons were temporarily laid off, pending renewal of production in April.

With such well known stars as Lew and Gloria Stuart being taken off the pay roll, Laemmle said the action "found a fine spirit in studio personnel. All have met the action with a display of coöperation." Contracts, he said, will be renewed with a resumption of production.

In addition to those stars the following directors and writers were laid off. J. M. Stahl, Karl Freund, Robert Wyler, Kurt Neumann, William Anthony McGuire, Tom Reed, Tom Kilpatrick, James Knox Millen, and William Hurlburt.

Wise Gals Will Be Feminine in Pant Legged Era

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Wonder if the pant legged sisters will be throwing away their perfume bottles, their bracelets, their earrings, their sheer chiffons?

A grotesque picture, is it not—that of the trousered one turning an atomizer on just before she sets her man felt hat askew on her head? We hear Marlene Dietrich, claimed to be responsible for the trousered fad, is already regretting the deed behind ruffled skirts.

We've seen a few of the gals who'd like to be men—and we argue again that no matter what kind of girl she'd look in skirts, she'd still be easier on the eye. It isn't the fad we complain about so much as the fit. Well, maybe not the fit—but the shape, built primarily for skirts and for nothing else but.

Not that we think the fad will make much impression on the world. Such extremes never do. It's only the hectic moment that gives this trousered business a hearing at all. Something to take the mind off its troubles—and put a new one there in its stead, we should add.

One thing we have learned from the predicted very, very brief run of the trousered girl is that she and her kind do not dress for men. At least, that old question is solved so far as the type is concerned. But the smart girls will lay on the feminine stuff this year as never before. It's a good year to play the eternal femme with the men feeling a bit down and the women needing the brace of a flattering word. And the season is offering the most fascinating of feminine things.

Miss Florence Carr Announces Attendants for Her Wedding

Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins Will Be Matron of Honor at Ceremony for Sister on March 25.

BY JUDITH CASS.

On the afternoon of March 25 Miss Marjorie Horton will walk down the aisle of St. Chrysostom's church as a bridesmaid instead of down the aisle of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest as a bride as she had planned to do until she and Winston Elting postponed their wedding until later in the season, for she is to be one of the ten girls who will attend Miss Florence Carr when she becomes Mrs. Edgar Lewis Marston II.

Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins is to be her sister's matron of honor and Mr. Marston's sister, Miss Elizabeth Marston, is to be the honor maid. The bridesmaids will be, in addition to Miss Horton, Miss Gwendolyn Juergens, Miss Edith Behr, Miss Eleanor Wheeler, Miss Eleanor McNally, Miss Margaret chapman, Miss Alice McCulloch of New York and Miss Georgianna Collins of Pittsburgh.

Ushering will be Robert Carr Jr., the bride's brother, and George Marston, a brother of the bridegroom; Byrnes MacDonald, Pierre Barbey and Robert Herndon of New York, Ralph Applegate and John S. Baker Jr. of Chicago. Mr. Marston has not decided whom he will ask to serve as best man, or else he hasn't heard from the one he has asked, for yesterday Miss Carr said they did not know yet who was to be the best man. There are to be two more ushers, too. The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock, with a reception at the Casino afterwards. Mr. Marston and his bride will find a house in Lake Forest in which to put their wedding presents and start housekeeping so that they can be at home out there after May 1.

Mr. Marston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter S. Marston of New York, will be passing through Chicago the end of this week on their way east from Tucson, but they will stay only a few days this time and will make another trip west later in the month for the wedding.

Miss McNally is giving a dinner for Miss Carr on Saturday night at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McNally of 1041 Judson avenue, Evanston, and Mr. Applegate has planned to entertain Miss Carr and Mr. Marston at the Saddle and Cycle on Sunday, March 19. On Wednesday, the 22d, Miss Edith Behr will be hostess at a dinner dance at the Casino for the bridal party. Plans for other pre-nuptial parties are indefinite, including those for the bridal dinner which probably will be given the night before the wedding.

Junior League Opens Exhibit.

Beatrice Borland's illustrated travel talk, entitled "Banking Through Sumatra and Persia," didn't make this listener want to start off on a trip to those far away places immediately, but it did make her eager to read the book, "Passports for Asia," which Miss Borland and her sister, Harriet, have written and which is due to be off the presses very soon, for if the book is as delightfully witty as yesterday's talk it will be a "best seller."

We didn't hear much about Sumatra for we were so entranced with the exhibition of art done by Junior league members in the next room that we didn't get into the lecture room until the Sumatran part was almost over, but from what Miss Borland said and the pictures that were shown we know we aren't adventurous enough to enjoy Persia as the Borland girls did, apparently.

Everybody who has belonged to the league since it was founded 21 years ago and all their feminine relatives and friends were there, we'd say, judging by the crowd, and those who waited to see the exhibition after the lecture will have to pay another visit, for they couldn't have seen the pictures properly during the serving of tea. The exhibition is discussed by Miss Jewett but we cannot refrain from remarking upon its excellence and congratulating the league upon the talent displayed by its members. Intriguing every one was one painting at the end of the room which was anonymous and no amount of persuasion made Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, chairman of the arts and industries committee which arranged the show, break her promise to the painter and tell who the mysterious and modest one is.

"She belongs to an artistic family and she thinks this, her first effort, is poor," was all Mrs. Wolfe would say, and she added, "But the judges picked it as one of the few to go with the prize winners to the National Junior league conference in Philadelphia.

Tea Served at Long Table.

Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, one of the committee and whose husband was one of the three judges, the other two being Miss Alice Roullier and Walter Frazier, poured at one end of the long tea table, and Mrs. Norman Pritchard, whose stunning photographic studies were hanging on the walls and were greatly admired by all, was at the other end.

A few of the many at the affair were Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., whose water colors won her the blue ribbon in that class—a real art authority exclaimed when she saw the four pictures exhibited by young Mrs. Bartlett, "They show spontaneous talent, not just hard work." Miss Marguerite Foster, whose charming New Orleans scenes won for her the red ribbon in the water color class; Miss Emeline Bush, the winner of the red ribbon in the oil painting class; Mrs. Duncan Hodges, whose ballet dancer took the first prize in crayons and pencil sketches; Mrs. Franklin G. Clement, Miss Margaret Quan, Miss Harriet Borland, Mrs. Dorothy Gardner, Mrs. John Satterthwaite, Mrs. John Shaw, Miss Dorothy Moorehead, Miss Katherine Daniels, and Mrs. Philip Maher, all exhibitors.

Postpone Party for Miss Higinbotham.

The linen and lingerie shower that Mrs. William K. Meyers had planned to give today for Miss Florence Higinbotham has been postponed until next Wednesday due to the "settling" difficulties Mrs. Meyers is experiencing while moving into her new home in Winnetka. Although the Meyers have been having lots of fun with their friends who have been calling on them, this tea and shower will be the first party that the former "Pawnee" Wolfe will give at her new address on Warwick road.

An enterprising group of Winnetka girls have started a junior auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society. About 20 young women gathered yesterday morning at the home of Miss Lois Truesdale for an organization meeting and they elected officers who will remain active until December when a regular junior board will be elected. Mrs. Harve G. Badgerow, chairman of the Winnetka senior board, was present. The elected officers are Miss Truesdale, chairman; Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, treasurer; Miss Adelaide Atkins, secretary, and Miss Jeanne Street, chairman in charge of sewing.

Next Monday at 12:30 o'clock the Chicago Council of Girl Scouts will hold a luncheon at the Women's City club to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of girl scouting in America. Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., who is acting commissioner for Chicago and a member of the national board, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, the first Girl Scout commissioner; Mrs. George J. Farnsworth, retired deputy commissioner, and Miss Elizabeth Webster and Mrs. Helen Cody Baker, members of the Council of Social Agencies, have been invited as special guests.

Party for Juniors of Alliance Francais.

There is one guest who is sure to enjoy the party Robert Hall McCormick is giving the Juniors of the Alliance Francais Saturday afternoon at his apartment atop the McCormick building, and that is Gamin, Mr. McCormick's French bull pup. Born in France Gamin pays no attention to any language except French and is decidedly haughty to those who use anything else than the proper accent.

Pierre de Lanux is to speak to the senior alliance at 3 o'clock Saturday, then move over to the tea, and afterwards to the Rene Weillers' apartment at 2000 Lincoln Park West for dinner. M. Weiller is the French consul general.

See Matisse Influence in League Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There opened in the Casino yesterday, to continue today and tomorrow, an exhibit of painting, water colors and photographs by members of the Junior league. The little room is devoted to charming sketches in water color by Mrs. Walter Paepke, of the characters and stage settings which appeared in this winter's dramatic production, "The Secret Garden," offered by the league. In the larger gallery is the formal exhibition.

One need not ask where many of these painters have been nurtured. Matisse is an able leader and his students repeat him with infinite variety and relish. Chief among them is Mary T. Bartlett, who offers four little pictures delightful in color and quaint in their precision of construction, exquisite Matisse. "Winter Flowers," a large painting by Elizabeth Paepke, is a stunning Matisse, beautifully painted.

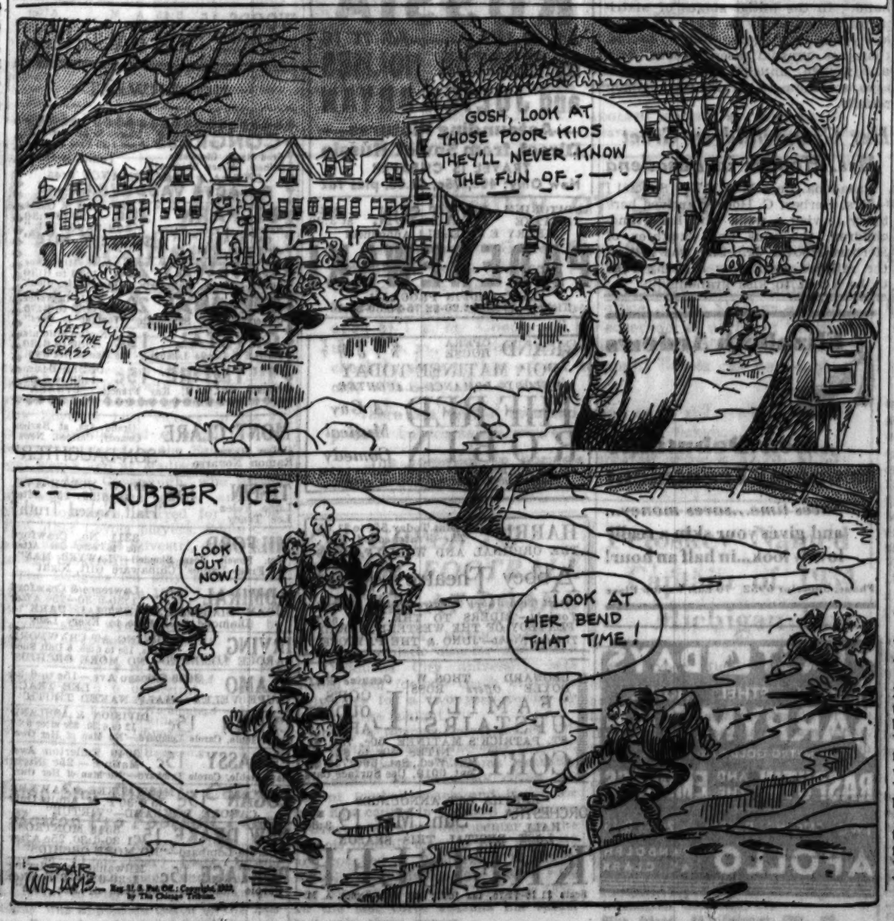

Sarah Brewster Hodges shows a wider range of influence. Her "Ballet Dancer" brings Degas to mind and other of her works remind one of the famous collection of moderns which hangs in her parents' house. The "Flower Seller" is individual as it does not immediately recall any other painter. It is a Mexican character study and colorful. Madeleine Maher won a blue rubbon with her whimsical "River View," a gently modern sketch of the amusement park. Her "February Back Yard" would win her admittance to the Chicago artist group called "The Ten." The flavor of Jean Crawford Adams, a fine vigor of stroke, stamps it.

Emeline Bush offers several interesting studies of flowers and fruit. The one of spring flowers, red poppies glow in it, is the most beautiful. Her little brown "Moret Sur Loing" is most attractive. Buele Mullen shows her striking portrait of Mrs. Potter Smith, which has been shown with the All-Illinois, and a "Still Life" excellently handled. Isabelle H. Satterthwaite submits the charming "Portrait of Margot Atkin" and "John III.," a little blond boy in the fashion of the English school.

The exhibition is well worth seeing and proves again the versatility of the Junior league. One wonders though what, without the French school, the painting would have been.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess, while marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville, meets a girl in a canoe who lives on a nearby island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leave a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman. She tells him in confidence that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He becomes engaged to Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea. Alice sees a photograph of Trevor Burgess. Bart suspects his Aunt Augusta and Ingy Warren of stumbling on his father's secret and inviting the Bayleys to Wyattville to expose it. Mrs. Constance Farnham is included in the intrigue. Bart calls on her. He learns that Mrs. Bayley was married to her son, who was killed shortly after in an accident, and that Alice is his daughter.

INSTALLMENT XLV.

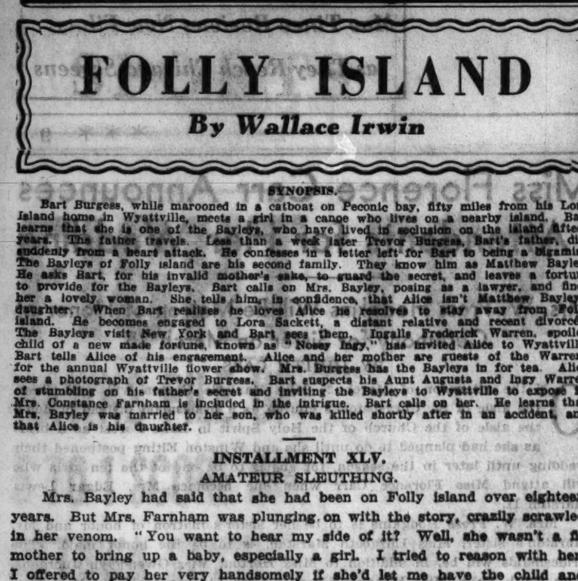

AMATEUR SLEUTHING.

Mrs. Bayley had said that she had been on Folly island over eighteen years. But Mrs. Farnham was plunging on with the story, crazily scrawled in her venom. "You want to hear my side of it? Well, she wasn't a fit mother to bring up a baby, especially a girl. I tried to reason with her. I offered to pay her very handsomely if she'd let me have the child and bring her up away from those dreadful influences. She wouldn't listen to me. She was very impertinent. She said she'd prefer to keep the baby in a theatrical dressing room."

There was a pause for breath, and because one question, and one only, mattered to Bart Burgess, he began to ask, "So Ingy Warren heard about that——"

"Evelyn was stubborn as a woman of that class can be. She wanted to keep the child just to humiliate me. Then my patience gave out. Mr.

In an obscure lane, leading up the hill, he paused long enough to toss his revolver into a little stream running under a culvert.

Burgess, I want you to hear this if you've been listening to Evelyn. I decided to take the case into court. For I knew very well that Evelyn Condon was an immoral woman."

"How?"

"I had plenty of witnesses. Everybody knew that she visited in actors' dressing rooms; that she went to midnight orgies—suppers I think she chose to call them—in her manager's hotel apartments."

"Your son met her at one of those—orgies," said Bart, and could not restrain a smile. He was becoming giddy with her story; his heart was singing wildly.

"What difference does that make? The evidence against her was enough to prove that she was an immoral person. The case was tried before Judge O'Brien. He was a very good friend of ours, a classmate of my husband's. The fairest man on the bench. Naturally he was horrified at Evelyn's behavior when we talked to him about it; before the case went to trial he told me, confidentially, that Evelyn was unfit to be a mother. He tried her without a jury because, he said, juries are so prejudiced. Evelyn didn't have any case at all. It only took Judge O'Brien one hearing to decide that the baby should be put under the custody of her grandparents until her eighteenth year."

Bart Burgess leaned forward, drew a long breath; he was still smiling when he asked, "Then what did she do?"

"It was a plain case of kidnaping." Mrs. Farnham bared her long yellow teeth. "She ran away with the baby, just as regardless of the law as she was when she snatched my Arthur. Instead of letting the child be raised as she should have been, in our family, Evelyn chose to live in hiding, from pillar to post. These bohemians don't care how they live. We've spent a small fortune trying to trace her down and rescue the poor child. And now Evelyn's shown her face again among decent people."

"That's a very—very unhappy story, Mrs. Farnham," said Bart trying to keep his voice down to a dolorous pitch. "But you were rather fortunate stumbling on Mrs. Bayley the way you did."

"It wasn't by accident," replied Mrs. Farnham with a certain pride in her own cunning. "Our mutual kinswoman, Augusta Forrester, has always taken a keen interest in our trouble. She identified Mrs. Bayley through a person with a queer name——"

"Ingy Warren?"

"No doubt. He was instrumental in bringing us together at the queer party those queer people gave the other day. It was very distressing for me. But I was determined to know."

New blood was racing in Bart's veins; but he made his voice very quiet when he asked the one important question:

"Did you happen to find out anything about the man she married later—this Bayley?"

"Why should I? I suppose she's pulled the wool over his eyes, too. Some common person she picked up. He'll know about her before I'm done with this."

"It's a little too late now, I'm afraid. He's dead."

In spite of himself Bart was in a broad grin. He wanted to leap up, run around in circles like a puppy out of the leash. So this was what all the fuss had been about, Ingy and Aunt Augusta tiptoeing in dark corners, a ridiculous pair of amateur sleuths. Sniffing here and there, noses to the ground, they had quite overlooked the big story, Trevor Burgess' scandal had utterly escaped them. All this was about a lost baby!

He only half received the rest of the poison which Mrs. Farnham was spitting into his ear. Something about the law. If Evelyn was trying to pass Alice off as Bayley's daughter she ought to be prosecuted. And not a cent of the general's money would go to the girl. Her mother had raised her to be an impudent little bohemian like herself. . .

Bart's knees, so eager to run and jump, were unexpectedly weak when he rose and bowed to Mrs. Farnham.

"I won't keep you any longer," he said. "And I can't tell you how grateful I am to you."

"I wanted you to hear my side of it. And I hope I've changed some of your ideas."

"You certainly have, Mrs. Farnham! You certainly have!" Rapturously he picked up her stringy hand and pressed it to his lips.

Out on the road again he began shooting his car around dangerous curves just to feel the wind driving into his lungs. In an obscure lane, leading up the hill, he paused long enough to toss his revolver into a little stream running under a culvert. In its flight it hit a concrete coping and bounced away with a metallic click. Vaguely Bart was glad that it didn't go off. . .

In his new freedom of spirit he felt capable of anything. The load was off his shoulders, he could act with decision. Only he must be methodical about it now, finding Alice. He blamed himself for that fuddled night in New York when he might have done something more. He might have called up Lora; she, at least, would have known where Ingy was, and Ingy had taken the Bayleys into town. I'm free now, he thought going up the hill. . . .

But the sense of freedom was not enduring. He stared ahead of him, facing undeniable obligations. Just now, merely by talking with a revengeful old woman, he had lifted the cloud from his mother's life and his. Now he must sink back into the rut which he had so carefully dug for himself before Alice came to Wyattville. This girl with the odd history, whose every appearance, however painful to him, had touched him in a spot which Lora Sackett could never reach.

Now what could he bring to her? No love, certainly. Only justice. And in the name of justice where could he find her in the few days which remained before, as a bridegroom, he sailed for ports which had no more charm for him than for the girl he had chosen to share his stateroom?

Girl Hesitates Over Marrying Jobless Fiance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl has a job paying $35 a week. The man is out of work and has been for quite a time. During his unemployment days he has accumulated some debts. He is discouraged and sick at heart. He and the girl have been engaged for two years.

The girl would like to marry him—to cheer him up; make a home for him. Yet, she doubts the wisdom of the move. She wonders if the man's unemployment wouldn't get on her nerves. She's seen this happen in the case of working women friends with husbands out of employment. Still, she loves the man and would like to be married and do her best to put some courage into him. There's a little nestegg for emergency needs in her savings account—a few hundred.

It is to ponder seriously whether to marry a jobless man or wait for better days. Marriage under the most favorable circumstances is a strong enough test of love and character. The joblessness is one more heavy factor to contend with. Still, if the girl loves and wants to be married and is willing to take the sporting chance on her own risk—why not marry?

Ordinarily one would not recommend marriage where there is no male pay envelope. But we're upon difficult days—days that call for courageous action on the part of women who want marriage.

We'd say that the answer lies entirely with the character of the woman earner and what capacity for patience she has and how willing she is to compromise with realities for the ordinary maiden's dreams of wedded bliss. It's no light problem for a woman to be the earner, to be the housekeeper, to be the constant source of joy and inspiration to a discouraged man.

It's not easy for most women to maintain a balance on this unemployment situation. Especially those who work. They have jobs. If they can get them—why can't men find something is the common trend of questioning. It's not healthy fare for a young man to live out of his wife's hand. In the initial stages of matrimony responsibility is what the average young man needs. But, of course, there are unusual cases, unusual men and women, unusual love that manages, somehow, to survive the common pitfalls.

Good Morning!

KIND—Rowdy, ribald farce.

FUNNY?—Not often.

ACTING—Commendable.

PHOTOGRAPHY—Likewise.

DIALOGUE—Banal and vulgar.

DIRECTION—Better than the story.

STORY—A couple of jobless vaudevillians have won a bunch of lions in a raffle. They are snatched up by a producer whose million dollar African movie company has returned with nary a foot of films. He wants the boys and their beasts to accompany a certain Amazonic exploress to the jungles and fix him up a colossal adventure film.

To the jungles!

Here the lads are both desired and acquired by a horde of Amazon ladies whose outstanding characteristic is a fierce amourousness which possesses them upon the setting of the sun. And so . . .!

The picture is perfectly ridiculous, of course, and goes out of its way to kid "Trader Horn" and the Martin Johnsons [the exploress' name, you note, is Mrs. Johnson-Martini]. Also there is some idiotic "Strange Interluding."

AUDIENCE APPEAL—The audience responds with occasional but never hearty laughter. The folks are being much more enthusiastic about the Palace's stage bill, which features Russ Columbo, who, time and again, "stops the show."

See you soon!

Intricate Quilt Takes Its Name from Proverb

Rolling Stone.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The "rolling stone" pattern is so complicated and difficult to piece that a quilt of this design is rarely seen unless it is one of the early quilts of the colonial period that are now preserved as antiques.

It originated in New England about the year 1780, and it is scarcely necessary to tell you that a certain old proverb was the direct inspiration.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Songs of U. S. Are Presented by Ada Files

BY EDWARD MOORE.

What American composers have accomplished in the art of writing music for songs was illustrated by Ada Belle Files last night, who sang a complete program of them at Kimball hall. She made them a matter of good selection as well as good singing, two important points in considering an attractive song recital.

A group by Campbell-Tipton, Charles T. Griffes, Richard Hageman, and John Alden Carpenter made up the first, to be followed by another four by Frank La Forge and a third by Robert Braine, Roland Farley, Rudolph Ganz, and Mana-Zucca. This concluded the first part of the program. After an interval she returned in American Indian costume to sing Indian songs in the rewriting of Thurlow Lieurance, Charles Wakefield Cadman, and Frederick Knight Logan, and finally the Robin Woman aria from Mr. Cadman's opera, "Shanewis."

Miss Files has a contralto voice of dark color, wide range, excellent quality, and power. She is most at her ease in works of serious nature, but she also has considerable power of characterization, which, taken with a fairly clear enunciation of the English language, gives force and point to her performance. Isaac Van Grove was her highly efficient accompanist.

In memory of Mayor Cermak, Mr. Stock has rearranged the program of the Symphony orchestra for tomorrow evening and Friday afternoon to include Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony. Debussy's "Engulfed Cathedral" will also be presented. Myra Hess, piano soloist, will play Mozart's Concerto in F and Franck's Variations Symphoniques.

Margery Maxwell, Chicago soprano, will be the soloist with the Omaha Symphony orchestra under the direction of Rudolph Ganz tomorrow evening.

THE STAGE

"Dixie on Parade," the revue given by a company of Negro entertainers at the Garrick theater, will end its engagement next Saturday night. The piece has had a run of six weeks. The management of the Garrick counts on reopening Sunday, March 19, with a comedy called "On the Make," which was acted in New York last spring.

"The Bride Retires," the comedy now in performance at the Blackstone theater with Edna Hibbard in the leading rôle, will close next Saturday night. A new play will probably be offered at the Blackstone at the conclusion of the banking moratorium.

The Chicago Operetta company appears to have disguised its final collapse and disappearance from the Civic Opera House with last Friday's announcement of a suspension of performances because of the prima donna's illness.

Today's bills of the Abbey Theater company of Dublin, at the Harris theater, will be: Matinee, "The White-headed Boy," a comedy by Lennox Robinson; evening, "The Playboy of the Western World," by J. M. Synge, with his one act drama, "Riders to the Sea," as a curtain raiser. C. C.

FIGHT FOR GOLDEN GLOVES TITLES TONIGHT

HAWKS PILE UP 5 TO 1 SCORE ON OTTAWA SEXTET

Fail to Gain in Race for Playoff Berth.

The Blackhawks defeated the Ottawa Senators, 5 to 1, in a National Hockey league game at the Stadium last night, but the victory was of only little benefit to the Chicagoans, who had hoped to gain more than a point on third place in the fight for Stanley cup playoffs.

Despite the triumph it is almost impossible for the Hawks to overtake the Rangers, who are in third place in the American division of the league. Mathematically, however, they still figure to have a chance, which is based on the hope that they will win their remaining five games while the Rangers do no better than win two and tie one or tie five out of their remaining seven games.

3,000 See Tame Game.

Last night's game was a passive demonstration that came nearer resembling a good practice, although both teams stepped up the pace in the third period for the edification of the 3,000 present. The Hawks took a two goal lead in the first period, scoring three times to Ottawa's once, and added two more scores in the third period.

Immediately after the game both teams rushed to Ottawa, where tomorrow night they finish their season series, which now stands two victories to one in favor of the Hawks with two ties in five games played. The Hawks return to the Stadium again on March 19 to finish the season in a game against Detroit.

THE GUMPS—THE PLOT THICKENS

Herman Hits 2 Homers for Cub Regulars

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 7.—Babe Herman today took bat in hand and socked himself two mammoth homers and a single, good for six runs and a fair portion of the total by which the Cub regulars tipped over the Cub Yannigans in a seven inning contest. The score was 13 to 4.

Charley Root, making his 1933 pitching debut, was victim of Babe's first shot and Bud Tinning, still suffering from a severe attack of groceries, yielded the Babe's No. 2. Tinning also was pitching when Herman smashed out his single with the bases full.

Bill Herman wasn't willing to see his branch of the Herman family tree wither and accordingly knocked a triple with the bases loaded also to the discomfiture of the enormous Mr. Tinning. The regulars made three hits off Root and ten off Tinning. The Yannigans made one hit, a single by Barton, off Henshaw in three innings, the youthful University of Chicago lefty being faced by only nine batsmen. Leroy Herrmann gave up five hits which accounted for three runs in the fifth and one in the seventh.

The day's activities had some significance other than the score. It revealed that Tinning has much work to do on the mainland of the United States to get in shape for the sterling performances expected of him, come the National league season.

The contest also caused a further rise in the stock of Henshaw. On his showing to date the young man of small proportions finds himself ranking with the other two lefties on the squad, Carroll Yerkes and Beryl Richmond. The Cubs will have to carry at least one lefty, and if the former Maroon can keep winning the favor of Manager Grimm as he has been doing in camp here he will be sitting in a golden chair, as a feller says.

The hospital reports reveal that the Cubs will leave their island camp day after tomorrow in more than the usual good shape. Pat Malone now is the main casualty, having wrenched his arm in the first Giants game. He will do no more throwing, he said today, until he visits a specialist in Los Angeles Friday morning. Yerkes reported his sore arm in shape, and Burleigh Grimes is feeling all right again. Bill Jurges felt no effects of his attack of sore muscles in playing today. Lynn Nelson still is nursing a sore arm and is not prepared to announce when he will be able to do some pitching.

Manager Grimm, whose lumbago is an absentee ailment at present, does not expect to play in the Giant series which opens Friday. He said that the men who pitch tomorrow will work in the Giant opener.

Marquette Is Beaten, 36-34, by Notre Dame

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 7.—Notre Dame's husky, ever-shooting basketball team achieved its tenth straight victory tonight by beating Marquette university in the final game of the season for the Hilltoppers. The score was 36 to 34. The defeat not only snapped Marquette's winning streak which had mounted to seven in a row, but also provided the South Bend squad with revenge. Marquette had beaten Notre Dame in a previous encounter, 35 to 33.

SIMMONS JUST LOOKS IN, BREAKS UP SOX GAME

Slugger Arrives Unexpectedly in Midst of Drill

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 7.—While the White Sox regulars and a makeshift team were in the midst of the first intracamp game of the season today, Al Simmons, the noted slugger, walked into camp and almost broke up the show.

All the athletes wanted to give Simmons an appropriate greeting and the one thousand free customers desired a closeup of the man they have read so much about. This naturally upset the game, but after the unscheduled welcoming had been disposed of the battle proceeded to a six inning conclusion with the regulars winning, 8 to 0.

He Reports Early.

The game served to reveal some of the things that are counted upon to make the Chicagoans hard to beat in the impending American league campaign. For instance, there were some fielding gems by Manager Lew Fonseca and Mule Haas, as well as valuable hits by the same pair.

Simmons' arrival was 24 hours ahead of schedule. This created a suspicion that he might have flown part of the journey from Hot Springs, Ark., where he had been suffering in a dentist's chair for a month. The former Athletic star insisted, however, that he had traveled by automobile. Anyway he was glad to get here and proved it by promptly asking for a uniform that he might take part in a batting practice which followed the bobtailed game.

Simmons laughed at the various stories about his being the victim of rheumatism, broken arches, ingrown toe nails, dandruff, and fifty other ailments. He admitted, however, that he had had a tough time of it because of four teeth extractions. The poison from the infected molars is what caused excessive pain in his right hand.

Golf Injury Only a Strain.

His hand still is a bit sore, but his doctors assured him this would vanish as soon as the poison worked out of his system. The golf injury, of which so much has been written, is said to have been nothing more than a severe strain put on the hand when he struck a rock while making an iron shot. The poison immediately settled in the weakened spot.

If Fonseca doesn't change his mind about playing another camp game tomorrow, Simmons will take part in it. He will be in left field and will bat fourth. With Simmons present the entire prospective regular Sox lineup will be complete. Just how Fonseca will bat them is a question. Dykes batted second, Haas third, and Fonseca fourth today.

It is possible that this trio may move up to make a place for Simmons between Fonseca and Kress. That arrangement would put Dykes in the lead off rôle, but whether that would be profitable is doubtful. There is a chance that Jack Hayes might be elevated to that spot.

Score by innings of today's game:

CHICAGO, DALLAS IN RUNNING FOR WESTERN OPEN

Chicago or Dallas, Tex., will be awarded the 1933 western open golf championship, with Chicago the likely choice.

Officials of the Western Golf association yesterday said if the tournament was staged in Chicago it would go to Olympia Fields late in the summer; if it goes to Dalla it will be played in December when the nation's golf professionals are making their tour of the west and south.

Loyola university's basketball team concluded its season last night by defeating the University of Wisconsin, 39 to 24, at Loyola gymnasium. It was Loyola's 14th victory in its 21 game schedule and avenged the defeat administered by the Badgers several weeks ago at Madison.

Capt. Don Cavanaugh, who played his last collegiate game, and Hal Motz, sophmore, starred for Loyola. Two other Loyola players, Eddie Connelly and George Silvestri, ended their college basketball careers.

The Badgers led only once during the game, holding a 10 to 7 advantage ten minutes after the contest started. Loyola soon went into the lead by scoring 11 consecutive points.

V. J. GREEN TO COACH FOOTBALL TEAM AT DRAKE

Des Moines, Ia., March 7.—(AP)—V. J. Green, athletic director and coach at Oklahoma City university, was named head football coach at Drake university for a two year period by the trustees tonight.

Green, a former University of Illinois football player, succeeds Evan O. [Bill] Williams. Williams probably will remain as basketball coach, assistant football coach and instructor in a new course in physical education.

Green was a regular center on the Illinois football team in 1922 and 1923 and coached at Waukegan, Ill., High school the following four years. He has been at Oklahoma City since 1928. In the last three seasons his teams lost only three games.

Petoskey Named Captain of 1934 Michigan Five

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 7.—[Special.]—Ted Petoskey, football, baseball and during the last season a basketball star, was elected captain of the 1934 Michigan basketball team today. The choice makes Petoskey captain in the only sport in which he did not receive a letter in his first year.

5 Champions Back to Win Golden Gloves

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Five Golden Gloves champions are seeking 1933 titles tonight at the Stadium. They are: Leo Rodak, 1931 flyweight champion, 1932 bantagweight champion, and captain of the intercity team, who fights tonight in the 126 pound class; Henry Rothler, 1932 lightweight champion, now in the welterweight class; Fred Caserio, 1931 middleweight champion and captain of Chicago's intercity team that year; Vernon Miller, who will defend his 175 pound title, and Jack Kranz, now a heavyweight, who won the 175 pound championship two years ago.

Peoria, Ill., leads the thirteen out of town centers with three boys in tonight's semi-finals. They are: George Dungey of Bloomington, Ill.; Keith Graves, 19 year old golf caddy, and Jack Smith, a bantamweight who learned about boxing when he resided in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Two team trophies will be awarded tonight. One will be presented to the out of Chicago team which scores the most points. The other will become the possession of the Chicago team which leads in points. The Catholic Youth organization, with three of its champions in tonight's semi-finals and

BEST AMATEURS OF CHICAGOLAND IN 24 BATTLES

Plenty of Good Seats Still Available.

Fight Facts

Event—Finals of sixth Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament.

Place—Stadium, 1800 West Madison street.

Time—Tonight, 8 o'clock.

Admission—75 cents, $1.50, $2.20, including tax; all seats reserved.

Number of boxers—32, four in each weight.

Number of bouts—24; 16 semi-finals and 8 championships.

Contestants—Report at Stadium between 2 and 6 o'clock this afternoon to weigh in and for medical examination.

Prizes—Diamond studded golden glove for each champion; silver glove for each runnerup; bronze glove for each alternate on Chicago's intercity which meets New York's Golden Gloves team at Stadium March 29; trophies for out of city and Chicago teams scoring most points in finals.

BY FRENCH LANE.

At last the time has arrived to crown the amateur boxing champions of Chicagoland. Eight of them—the survivors of the fittest in an original field of 5,000—tonight at Chicago Stadium will fight their way through 24 bouts which make up the final program of THE TRIBUNE'S sixth annual Golden Gloves tournament.

The cast of 32 in this last act of the most remarkable amateur boxing show held in the world represents the best ring talent in seven states. They come from a field which included Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Tennessee, and Ohio. Thirteen of them are from Chicago. Nineteen of them from surrounding cities.

The curtain goes up at 8 o'clock, and from then on there will be a continuous booming barrage until along about 11:30 o'clock, when the last victor will be decided. There will not be an idle moment during the evening.

Tribute to Martyred Mayor.

The semi-final struggles open the program. Then will come a special ceremony including a tribute to Chicago's martyred mayor, Anton Cermak. Next come the fights for the diamond studded Golden Gloves.

A true test of the genuine popularity of Golden Gloves tournaments confronted tonight's show. But bank holidays, general depression, and other conditions have been unable to halt the sale of tickets. Last night the ticket sale indicated an attendance of 15,000. More than likely it will go beyond that mark, but there is certain to be seats even for the late comers.

Checks still will be accepted in payment for tickets at THE TRIBUNE'S Public service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and at room 530, Tribune Tower, until 6 o'clock tonight. They also will be accepted at the Stadium box offices from 1 o'clock until 6 o'clock. From then on cash only will be accepted at the Stadium box offices. Twelve box offices will be open at the Stadium at 6 o'clock—six on the Madison street side and six on Warren avenue.

Eight Winners to Make Team.

Aside from receiving a diamond studded golden glove, each of the eight victors automatically takes his place on the Chicago team which meets New York in the annual intercity bouts at Chicago Stadium on the night of March 29. The remainder of the personnel making up the Chicago intercity team of sixteen boxers and eight alternates will be selected immediately after tonight's championships.

The selections will be made by Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE; Wilfrid Smith of THE TRIBUNE, and Johnny Behr, who will coach the Chicago team. The Chicago warriors will go into training for the inter-city matches on Monday at the Illinois Athletic club.

In thrills, heart throbs, and hours of frenzy final matches of Golden Glove competition have made records. Twenty thousand spectators frequently have been swept into a turmoil over them. Yet the battles tonight should outdo all those that have been written into amateur boxing history.

Evenly Matched Boys.

While the program moves along from one division to another—from the flyweights to the towerin young giants among the heavies—the most skillful and evenly matched boxers ever brought together for a fight for Golden Gloves will be engaged in desperate struggles. The boys who scramble through it all will be worthy representatives of Chicago in that fight later on against New York.

Old champions will defend their laurels against up and coming youngsters who have mastered the art of boxing. There isn't a boy in this group of 32 who can't deliver a sleep producing punch if the occasion arises.

This will be demonstrated just as soon as the curtain goes up and the first pair of flyweights climb into the ring. Johnny Baltzer of Davenport, a Golden Glove veteran, will be up against Jim Kinney of Joliet, and Walter Matthys and Leonard Cohen of Chicago. It is the finest flyweight class that has ever come up to the semi-final and championship rounds.

Competition for Rodak.

Then there's Leo Rodak, who has moved up into the featherweight division, ready to go after a new cham-

The battle to remain in the race for the Chicago Public High School league lightweight and heavyweight basketball championships will be continued today. Four games, two in the heavyweight division and two in the lightweight will be held in the semi-final round. The finals will be held either Friday or Saturday. Sites of the games have not been selected.

Bowen's quintets will play in a double header at White City, the lightweights meeting Fenger, while the heavyweights will play Parker. In the other games Lake View's heavyweights will clash with Lane Tech at Loyola gymnasium, while Roosevelt's lightweights will face Austin on the latter's court.

Battle for Sectional Honors

Play for sectional honors in the Chicago Catholic High School league also will be resumed. One lightweight and two heavyweight contests will be played. The winners will become eligible for the elimination series, which will be held Friday and Saturday.

In a lightweight game in the north section yesterday St. George defeated De Paul, 24 to 22, in the closing minutes. De Paul will meet St. Michael at De Paul's gymnasium today.

St. Rita Heavyweights Win.

In two south section contests St. Rita's heavyweights triumphed over Mount Carmel, 31 to 24, while the Mount Carmel lightweights, defending champions, won from St. Rita, 34 to 32, in the final three minutes.

De La Salle will meet Mount Carmel and St. Mel will play St. Philip today in a pair of heavyweight games. Yesterday's lineups:

LIGHTWEIGHTS IN C. Y. O. TOURNEY REACH SEMI-FINAL

St. Mary of the Lake advanced to the semi-final round of the Catholic Youth organization lightweight basketball tournament by defeating Blessed Agnes, 29 to 22, at St. Michael's gymnasium last night. Other teams winning in the quarter-finals were St. Sylvester and St. Raphael. The semi-finals are scheduled for tomorrow night.

St. Sylvester went into the semi-finals by triumphing over St. Alphonsus, 41 to 19, while St. Raphael won from St. Cecilia, 20 to 17.

In the girls' division St. Mary's Training school beat St. Andrew, 14 to 9, and St. Agatha defeated St. Hilary, 12 to 8.

Hagen Seeks to Recapture Major Titles and Retire

Maybe the lure of the storming, admiring galleries will make him change his mind, but Walter Hagen plans to retire from all active competition after his 1933 golf engagements here and abroad.

His plan is to wage a serious campaign to recover his major titles on both sides of the Atlantic, captain the American Ryder cup team to victory in England, and then retire to the business of designing golf clubs and equipment.

Although he has been one of the big money winners of the current winter campaign, with his total earnings placed at around $2,000, he is 40 years old and anxious to say "Good-by" to active bigtime golf while he's still regarded as one of the great shotmakers of the game.

Even if Hagen does not win another major title this year and then retires he will leave a great mark for the future professional stars to shoot at. He has won the national open twice, in 1914 and '19; captured the British open four times, in 1922, '24, '28, and '29; won the professional golf championship of the United States five times, in 1921, '24, '25, '26, and '27, and the metropolitan title in 1916, '19, and '20. The western open championship has belonged to him five times, in 1916, '21, '26, '27, and '32. Canada's open escaped him until 1931.

Change Hours of Sprints in Six Day Race

Chicago's 29th international six day bicycle race this year will end at 12 o'clock instead of 11. The hours of the daily sprints also will be changed. Sidney N. Strotz, who with John M. Chapman is promoting the race, made this announcement last night. Previously the sprints have been held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, nine at night, midnight and 2 o'clock in the morning. This year sprints will be at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at nine at night, as before, but the next series will be held at 11 o'clock and the final 10 sprints at one o'clock in the morning. The race will start Sunday.

Entrants in the Chicago race finished the New York six day race in excellent condition. Gerard Debaets gave a brilliant riding exhibition on the final night of the New York race when he won seven out of the last nine sprints to win the event on points. He was paired with Letourner. The Letourner-Debaets team probably will rule the favorite in the Chicago race.

Big 10 High Jump Record in Danger When Ward Leaps

With one exception, the principal fireworks of the Big Ten indoor track and field meet at the University of Chicago field house Friday and Saturday nights will be provided by young men who can run very fast. Records in the sprint, the hurdles, and the shorter distance races are in danger.

The exception is Willis Ward, Michigan's superb Negro athlete, who, if he is in form, can break the indoor high jump mark by at least an inch. He has cleared 6 feet 7¼ inches in outdoor competition and 6 feet 6 inches inside.

The conference indoor record in the high jump is 6 feet 5 inches, established by Charles McGinnis of Wisconsin in 1927.

LITTLE 19 MEET SATURDAY.

The third annual Illinois intercollegiate athletic conference indoor track and field meet will be held Saturday in Merner fieldhouse of North Central college at Naperville.

Fifteen schools in the Little Nineteen, Normal university, Bradley, Augustana, McKendree, De Kalb, Teachers, Wesleyan, Southern Normal, Eureka, Monmouth, St. Viator, Illinois college, Elmhurst, Lake Forest, Wheaton, and North Central will be represented.

two other boxers, seems certain to win the Chicago trophy. The C. Y. O. champions are: Buddy Ginter, 118 pounds; Henry Rothier, 147 pounds, and Max Marek, 175 pounds. The other C. Y. O. boys are Leo Rodak and John Pacek, heavyweight.

George Baratko, who reached the semifinals by default when Billy Miller of Milwaukee, Wis., was rejected by the physicians because of a badly cut eye, and Johnny Dobler are the Cleveland boys in tonight's show. They also have the distinction of traveling the greatest distance since the Nashville, Tenn., team was eliminated in the Tournament of Champions.

Six ounce gloves will be used for the first time in tonight's fights in the 112, 118, and 126 pound classes. The other weight divisions will continue to use eight ounce gloves.

All boxers must report between 2 and 6 o'clock this afternoon at the Stadium to weigh in and for their physical examinations. One pound is allowed in each class; that is, a flyweight may weigh 113 pounds. And so on.

24 Battles Tonight to Decide Golden Gloves Championships

pionship. Irving Goldstein of Chicago, tough little George Dungey of Peoria, and George Van Der Hayden of South Bend, are standing in the path ready to do their best to push him aside as he endeavors to move on up the ladder.

Johnny Dobler of Cleveland, Keith Graves of Peoria, Edward Ward of Chicago, and Bruno Galvanoni of Rockford, the quartet of lightweights, are all newcomers into the Golden Gloves but real fighters. Among the welterweights there are a couple of veterans, Henry Rothier of the C. Y. O. and Bill Celebron of Rockford, who are face to face with two of the best youngsters who have ever come into the tournament. These young fellows are George Baratko of Cleveland, and King Wyatt of Fort Wayne.

Fred Caserio has his work cut out for him to capture the title in the 160 pound division. Jim Cummings of Chicago, Billy Treest of Joliet, and Ellis Bradley of Quincy, are the other semifinalists. The ring fans who have followed the Tournament of Champions believe the most exciting fighting of the night will come when these middleweights begin whaling away at each other.

Light Heavyweight Thriller.

There's still another thriller awaiting in the light heavyweight class. If the break of the draw should bring Farmer Miller of Davenport and Max Marek of Chicago into action in either the semi-final or title match this battle should be the greatest of the night. Last year they fought it out hammer and tongs. It was dreadfully close at the finish. Miller got the verdict. Both boys have improved. There's no love lost between them.

The heavyweight divisions is the most powerful ever assembled. Last night Adolph Wiater, the big fellow who works in the pickle factory at Green Bay, Wis., ruled as a slight favorite. Others in the field are Jack Kranz of Gary, John Pacek of Chicago, and Arlo Soldati, the coal miner from Rockford.

Gravelle and Bemi Win Midway Arena Windups

Frank Keevil beat Jimmy Richards [4].
Jackie Collins beat Duke Calloway [4].
George Schrosbree beat Jerry Kucera [4].
Frank Walsh beat Hassen Ahmed, wrestling.

Here's Cast for Golden Gloves Greatest Show

The greatest group of amateur boxers ever to compete in a Golden Gloves tournament will start the semifinals of the 1933 championships tonight at 8 o'clock at the Stadium. Immediately following the 16 semifinals the eight championships will be held. The list of tonight's contestants follows:

112 POUND CLASS—James Kinney, Joliet, Ill.; Johnny Baltzer, Davenport, Ia.; Leonard Cohen, Trafton's gym; Walter Matthys, St. Charles, Ill.

PING-PONG STARS OPEN TOURNEY ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Whether the penholder griup is more popular than the tennis grip will be known when the national ping pong tournament opens at the grand ballroom in the Palmer house Friday night.

Among the players entered in the meet who will use the penholder grip are Chet Wells, New York; Max Rushakoff, who recently won the western championship; Frank Work, Paul Pearson, D. W. McEwan, and Billy Condy. The east's champion, Abraham Kraukauer, and Jimmy Jacobson, ranked No. 2, also have entered.

ORDER CHICAGO LIVESTOCK YARDS CONTINUE OPEN

Hogs Sell at Highest Price in Six Months.

The Chicago livestock market will remain open. The order closing the yards at 3 o'clock yesterday was rescinded by the exchange officers when the difficulties between packers and commission houses regarding the method of payment by checks was ironed out.

The packers agreed that when requested to do so they will issue two checks on each consignment, one for the net payment to the shipper and the other to cover marketing expenses. Farmers accompanying their stock to market say they are well satisfied with the arrangement.

Receipts Still Light.

Receipts were light and are expected to remain light for several days. So another sharp advance in the price of hogs was the outstanding feature of the market. Top swine sold at the highest point in almost six months and were 80 cents above a week ago.

Choice 200 to 289 pound hogs topped the market at $4.40. The general average for the day advanced 25 cents to $4.15, while 375 pound butchers sold at $4.00.

Cash 'Flows Into Market.

A rather curious situation has developed. Since last week's close there has been a steady flow of cash into the live stock market, mostly bills of large denominations. Smaller packers and city butchers buying with cash were able to get stock as much as 15 to 20 cents per hundredweight lower than the prices paid by those buying with checks.

Cattle came in for another substantial advance that sent prices to the highest levels of the year. Gains of 25 cents were general in most divisions, but top grades of steers took the lead.

Most of the beef steers sold at $4.75 to $6.50, prime 1,309 pound averages at the latter price.

Additional gains of 15 to 25 cents were made in lambs. Stimulated by a 3 to 4 cents advance in the wholesale market for dressed lamb carcasses, the market moved up with little opposition.

HOW CHICAGO MARKETS MEET BANK HOLIDAY

Here is what is happening in Chicago exchanges: Chicago stock exchange rules that members maintain facilities for receipts of cancellations and changes of orders. Board of Trade informed that farmers, when necessity arises, may send grain to Chicago, with knowledge they will not have to pay storage charges for grain held in cars until bank holiday ends.

Although Chicago mercantile exchange remains closed, food markets are functioning, insuring food supply for city. In compliance with Washington regulations national banks are reported accepting checks against drafts on perishable foodstuffs. Chicago fruit exchange is functioning and taking steps to prevent price boosting. Chicago poultry exchange operating on cash basis.

REALTY BONDS GROUP ASKS NEW ILLINOIS LAWS

Seeks Cuts in Costs of Reorganizations.

BY AL CHASE.

A reduction in court costs and legal fees of approximately 75 per cent through standardization of attorneys' fees and the elimination of master in chancery and receiver fees in real estate bond reorganizations is predicted by George W. Rossetter, chairman of Chicago's newly formed super-bondholders' protective committee, if bills introduced at Springfield yesterday become a law. In addition to a drastic reduction in the present costs of reorganizing defaulted mortgage bond issues, the proposed law is expected to effect large savings through speedier refinancing.

The bills introduced at Springfield are expected to bring relief to approximately 600,000 owners of $600,000,000 defaulted realty bonds of issues totaling over a billion dollars. The proposed law will not affect the redemption period allowed by present laws on farms and small homes.

Mr. Rossetter said that the passage of the measure will help to loosen the log jam of defaulted real estate securities in the banks of Illinois and will thus materially aid in relieving the banking situation of its most serious handicap.

LONDON, PARIS STILL DECLINE TO QUOTE DOLLAR

CHICAGO SURFACE LINES HAVE 13.4% LIGHTER TRAFFIC

The Chicago Surface Lines sustained a loss of 13.23 per cent in gross earnings and of 13.42 per cent in the number of passengers carried during the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, 1933, as compared with the preceding year, according to the annual report of President G. A. Richardson, issued yesterday.

Despite the inroads of the depression, the company maintained intact its operating force of 16,000 employés, the report states.

Gross earnings totaled $44,421,101 for the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, 1933, compared with $51,196,141 for the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, 1932. Residue receipts after operating expenses and taxes totaled $6,694,168 for the 1932 period compared with $8,252,249 for the 1931 year.

Operating expenses, excluding taxes, were reduced from $39,928,892 for 1931 to $34,726,933 for 1932.

"Meanwhile," the report states, "every effort has been made to preserve the adequacy of service. Car miles have been reduced less than 12 per cent, and considering the use made of the larger cars, together with better scheduling, the decrease in facilities was even less than that.

PICK G. A. RANNEY FINANCIAL CHIEF OF INSULL FIRMS

Becomes Vice Chairman of 3 Big Utilities.

George A. Ranney, vice president of the International Harvester company, will become vice chairman of the three great operating companies in the Chicago utility field on or about May 1. An announcement to this effect was made yesterday by James Simpson, chairman, and the boards of the three corporations — Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Mr. Ranney takes charge of the office that was made vacant recently b the resignation of Samuel Insull Jr. He has resigned from the International Harvester company and will leave its service before taking up his duties with the utilities.

Statement of Companies.

The statement issued by the companies said:

"Mr. Ranney has been connected with the International Harvester company for thirty-five years and during practically that entire period has devoted himself almost entirely to its financial affairs. His experience and recognized ability not only add additional strength to the organization, but further emphasize the present policy to spare no efforts to secure the very best talent available for the management of the company."

At his office in the Harvester company building, Mr. Ranney declined to make any comment, saying that he could not amplify the statement and had no plans to discuss.

Started Career with Bank.

Mr. Ranney is 58 years old and a native of Chicago. He was educated in local schools. His early business experience was with the Bank of Montreal's Chicago office, where he remained for nine years. He joined the McCormick Harvesting Machine company in 1898 and remained with that organization until 1902. From the latter year until the present he has been with International Harvester, which absorbed McCormick.

Since 1916 Mr. Ranney has been secretary of his firm and has held the rank of vice president since 1922.

At the meeting of the boards of the three companies Mr. Simpson was reëlected chairman. All the directors also were reëlected.

U. S. TRADERS EYE FOREIGN MARTS; STOCKS STRONG

N. Y. Exchange Orders Brokers Stay Open.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—With no indication when domestic commodity and security exchanges would be able to resume trading, Wall street today continued to watch foreign markets for cues on the trend of prices.

American specialties maintained a strong undertone in some foreign markets, particularly in Canada. European markets generally were steady to firm, despite the adverse influence of the domestic banking crisis upon sentiment abroad.

On the Toronto Stock exchange prices continued to rise moderately, led by agricultural implements and such issues an International Nickel and Consolidated Smelters.

Stocks Up in London.

In London stock prices improved as trading progressed, mainly because of reassuring advices for the United States. There was strong buying of American specialties.

United States Steel closed ⅛ point up from Monday's last sale. International Nickel was up ⅝, Drug, Inc., unchanged, and Canadian Pacific up ⅛.

Although local exchanges were closed, brokerage offices remained open on orders by the committee of seven to maintain facilities during the suspension of trading for the receipt, cancellation and change of orders to avoid congestion at the reopening. The order applies to all members, including specialists, bond holders and odd lot dealers.

Many Orders Canceled.

Many orders which were on the books before the exchanges closed were being canceled by customers who were waiting to see how the markets would open before deciding what to do.

A partner of one large Broadway commission house said cancellation of selling orders outnumbered cancellations on the buying side.

Peoples Gas Light & Coke Declares $1.25 Dividend

The People's Gas Light and Coke company directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the common stock payable April 17 to stock of record April 3. The stock is payable out of the surplus earnings of the company.

CONFER TODAY ON REOPENING GRAIN MARKETS

Chicago Men Will Meet Farm Board Head.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Reopening of the grain exchanges is regarded as depending largely on the result of a conference to be held at Washington this morning, called by Henry Morgenthau Jr., chairman of the Federal Farm board. President Peter B. Carey of the Chicago Board of Trade, with S. C. Harris, A. L. Lindley, Leslie N. Perrin, and Secretary Fred H. Clutton left yesterday afternoon to attend the conference.

Mr. Morgenthau said the Grain Stabilization corporation now owns practically no cash wheat, but does own 30,391,000 bushels of futures, the largest part for May delivery. These futures, he said, would be disposed of as quickly as possible without disturbing the market.

Prohibit Interim Trading.

Directors of the exchange have passed a resolution prohibiting transactions until all markets can reopen. Trading in cash grain, which has been carried on since Saturday, will cease at 9 a. m. today. Kansas City has also prohibited trading in cash grain, rescinding its previous action.

A controversy apparently has developed over the refusal of the directors of the Chicago Board of Trade to permit mills to purchase May wheat from the Grain Stabilization corporation and in so doing, remove hedges on cash grain against sales of flour.

Prices Lower at Winnipeg.

Trading in wheat futures in Winnipeg yesterday was not as active as on the two previous days. A rush of profit taking early, due to the refusal of Liverpool and Buenos Aires to follow the upturn in the Canadian market, resulted in opening prices showing as much as 2 cents under Monday's finish. The decline was largely recovered later on buying by houses with export connections, but there was a reaction from the best figures before the close, with the finish ⅞ to 1 cent lower. May was quoted at 51⅝ cents in Canadian funds at the last, with July at 52⅝ cents and October at 54 cents.

Other grains at Winnipeg were easier, with oats closing ⅛ to ⅜ cents lower, while rye was off ⅜ to 1 cent; barley, ⅛ to ⅜ cent, and flaxseed 1⅛ cents. Liverpool wheat closed ¼ to ⅛ penny lower.

GOODWIN CORP., NEW ADS FIRM, OPENS OFFICES

The Goodwin corporation, a new advertising agency, opened offices yesterday on the twenty-second floor of the Mather Tower.

The new corporation is headed by Adolph O. Goodwin, who has many years of advertising experience back of him. The other officers are Silas Bates and J. Lanum.

The corporation is capitalized for one hundred thousand dollars and the offices in which it is housed are completely equipped in every essential of the advertising business.

The agency is equipped with a new policy of advertising contract which will be announced later.

To Holders of

HUNGARIAN DOLLAR BONDS

Following the declaration in December, 1931, of a Hungarian Moratorium on foreign debt payments, the banking houses which publicly offered the issues of Hungarian Dollar Bonds listed below (or American issues secured by Hungarian Dollar Bonds), initiated co-operation to protect the interests of American bondholders, such co-operation leading to the organization in June, 1932, of an AMERICAN COMMITTEE ON LONG TERM HUNGARIAN DOLLAR DEBT.

The Committee has kept in active touch with the Hungarian situation, it has been officially recognized by the Hungarian Government, and representatives of the Committee have been in frequent consultation with the Hungarian authorities with a view to safeguarding so far as practicable the interests of the American bondholders.

The recently announced extension of the Hungarian Moratorium (restricting foreign currency payments by Hungarian debtors) and the existing economic conditions in Hungary indicate the impracticability of any early attempt at a definite readjustment of Hungary's foreign debt.

The Committee therefore believes that the interests of the American bondholders will be best served by the Committee continuing to keep itself informed of developments which may affect the bondholders' interests, and that, unless in respect of certain issues special circumstances may so require, there is no present occasion for the general deposit of bonds with the attendant expense, inconvenience and loss of marketability.

Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell are acting as counsel to the Committee.

PRESSED STEEL CAR COMPANY

Ten-Year 5% Convertible Gold Bonds

Due January 1, 1933

To the Holders of PRESSED STEEL CAR COMPANY Ten-Year 5% Convertible Gold Bonds, Due January 1, 1933:

At the request of the holders of a substantial amount of bonds, the undersigned have agreed to act as a Deposit Committee representing the bondholders under a Deposit Agreement dated as of March 6, 1933, the original of which is lodged with The New York Trust Company. The Committee believes it of urgent importance that the bondholders act promptly for the protection of their interests, and accordingly requests the early deposit of bonds, accompanied by January 1, 1933 coupons, with The New York Trust Company, 100 Broadway, New York, N. Y., the Depositary of the Committee, in order that, without delay, there may be united and effective representation of the interests of the bondholders.

The Committee will accept for deposit certificates of deposit (accompanied by January 1, 1933, coupons) issued by The New York Trust Company under an offer made by Pressed Steel Car Company dated September 28, 1932, as amended by a letter dated December 27, 1932.

Certificates of Deposit will be issued by The New York Trust Company against deposits made with it. Copies of a transmittal letter to be used in making deposits and of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained upon request made to the Secretary of the Committee or to The New York Trust Company.

Dated, New York, N. Y., March 8, 1933.

MEN.

On account of the steady progress and growth of our company we are in a position to take on a few additional men from time to time; the requirements for these positions are quite reasonable so that the average man of good habits and clean cut appearance will stand a fair chance of being employed.

This company has been uniquely successful throughout this depression, in fact, 1932 was our third successive record sales year. In line with our steady gains in business the earnings of our men are higher; not only are more men earning $50.00 and $75.00 a week, but in recent months we have issued many weekly pay checks running between $100.00 and $250.00 throughout the entire country. These earnings, of course, are generally made by more experienced men, but there are exceptions where new men have quickly advanced themselves to the higher incomes.

Similar positions are available in our local office to a few more men who are qualified to learn this work, and who would be satisfied with earnings of $125.00 monthly while learning, provided they saw opportunities for increases with experience; the men accepted for these positions will be given a very thorough course of training free of charge.

For personal interview call at Room 215 McGraham Bldg., 1046 Wilson-av., Wednesday, March 8, at 2 p. m.—NO OTHER TIME.
